Canvas $20,000 a Foot.
Chrysler Builds High.
Mr. Rockefeller's News.
Cottages $1.10 Per Week.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE

(Copyright, 1928.)

THE earth is beautiful and its best real estate corners are valuable, some in New York worth $500 a square foot and more.

But New York's corner of Broad and Wall streets itself isn't worth as much per foot as a piece of canvas after a good artist has finished with it.

WALTER P. CHRYSLER, whose stockholders ought to insure his life, since it would be difficult to replace him, does first one thing, then another, without waiting between.

Now he is building a 68-story office building in the middle of Manhattan, to cost $14,000,000.

More power to him and all that go up high into the air, giving architectural and building genius a chance.

More power also to S. W. Straus, man of vision, whose company lends $7,500,000 on the new building.

MR. ROCKEFELLER turned oil, plus business ability, and, as he said, "patience and economy," into one of the world's great fortunes.

Now he turns that fortune into something worth more than gold, namely, PUBLIC HEALTH AND HAPPINESS.

The Rockefeller Institute announces a "convalescent serum" giving wonderful results in infantile paralysis. Slowly science conquers disease, as knowledge conquers superstition.

THE British Viscountess Byng, of Vimy, unlocked with a silver key the doors of newly built four-room cottages. They cost $750 each, and she rents them for $1.10 a week.

As she unlocked each door, the countess, following an old custom, threw in a loaf of bread and a lump of coal that the tenant might never lack food or warmth.

The countess will get more than 6 per cent on her investment. Why couldn't that be done in our mining regions, for instance?

JUST to show the Bears that this is no time to sell short, stocks and Bulls in Wall Street did all sorts of things yesterday.

Some stocks shot up $30 a share. And sad Bears were heard to murmur: "I shall wait until every stock on the list passes $200 before I ever sell anything again, and then I won't sell."

THE fact that this is a PROSPEROUS country, with all due respect to Democrats that call our prosperity a myth.

And while you should NEVER gamble, since it is both wrong and unprofitable, you should be extra careful not to sell short.

WISE spending is at least as important as wise saving, and often more profitable.

For instance, before the Panama Canal was built, before this country had learned to spend billions, many shivered at the thought of a $300,000,000 enterprise. Since 1914 that canal has collected in tolls $193,307,727.

It will pay for itself many times, in addition to more than doubling the value of the United States Navy and promoting the shipping interests of the whole world.

TODAY William Edward Hickman, after long delay, will pay with his life for kidnaping and murdering a little girl in California.

Since his conviction Hickman has joined the Catholic church and prays for those that brought his conviction and sent him to the gallows. That is kind of him, but unless religion is much mistaken, it is he that needs prayer.

The worst of this Hickman incident, next to the crime itself, is the fact that it encourages other young morons to feel that murder is after all "not so dangerous, and you have plenty of time."

FOR the first time in 70 years Italy has executed a criminal. The Italian method is to shut a man up for life in solitary confinement, seeing no one, talking to no one, containers of food pushed into the cell by a man that the prisoner does not see.

Michele Della Maggiore, convicted of killing two Fascists, should be grateful that he was shot yesterday.

Death, which some Christian Scientists call "The valley of illusion," is not a thing to fear. Solitary imprisonment is horrible.

IN Little Rock, Ark., they don't believe in evolution.

And in Little Rock, Charles Smith, "President of the American Association for Advancement of Atheism," is foolish enough to say that he doesn't believe in God. In fact, he was found with a placard reading, "Evolution is true. The Bible is a lie. God is a ghost."

EXPLOSION WRECKS PLANE

POLK, Pa., Oct. 19.—(AP.)—The burned plane and cremated body of Air Mail Pilot William C. Hopson was found three miles southwest of here today by searchers who sought out the plane after having received reports of flares having been dropped early yesterday.

Hopson

The burned plane and the pilot's body were found by ground searchers after daylight this morning. Planes from Clarion and the plane of W. L. Smith, superintendent of the air mail route, flying from Cleveland, traversed the region between Clarion and Cleveland yesterday without finding any trace of the missing ship. Their search, for the most part, was made north of here.

Hopson's body was found in a small patch of woods. Soon after it was found, a guard was placed about the fallen plane and its pilot. No attempt was made to remove Hopson's body from the wreckage. It was presumed that it would not be removed until officials of the air mail had inspected the wreckage.

While yesterday's report of a light bursting from the ship was taken to indicate that Hopson had dropped a flare in an attempt to find a suitable landing place, belief was expressed today that an explosion occurred while the plane was in mid-air.

Hopson was flying the mail route between New York and Cleveland. He was due to arrive in the Ohio city at 3 o'clock yesterday morning. Yesterday residents of this town reported that at 2 a. m. they saw the plane traveling westward and that a bright light burst from the ship as it passed beyond a hill. The light was believed to be a flare.

Hopson was out of the dangerous Pennsylvania mountain region when he crashed. He passed over Clarion, about 30 miles east of here, almost on scheduled time.

A considerable amount of the mail in the ship was destroyed or damaged by fire. Hopson carried 1,000 pounds of mail.

The plane came down in a wild bit of country. Investigation revealed that it had struck the top of a large tree in its descent and continued on for a distance of about 40 feet before it piled up at the foot of another tree.

Neither one of the pilot's flares had ben used, indicating that the illumination seen on the night of the crash come from the plane itself.

Felled by 22,000 Volts, Yet Lives

Twenty-two thousand volts of electricity coursed through the body of James Hoey, 50, in the Dormont sub-station of the Duquesne Light Company this morning, yet he still lives.

Hoey, who resides at 5819 Hays street, was working in the plant when he came in contact with a high tension wire. He was thrown free of the wire by the force of the current after he had been burned.

Detective's Right To Vote Is Challenged

The right of City Detective F. B. Malone to vote in the Twenty-second district of the Ninth Ward was contested this morning in an appeal to the county courts from the registration board's decision upholding the sleuth's right to vote in the district where he conducts a painting and decorating business. The appeal was brought by Mrs. Sarah Norris, of 4516 Davison street, chairwoman of the district. Malone formerly was chairman of the district.

Mrs. Norris alleges that Malone's wife resides at 354 Forty-fourth street and that Malone eats at that address, although the detective claims he sleeps at his place of business, 285 Forty-fifth street. It was testified that Malone keeps living quarters above his place of business and occupies them most of the time. He told the court he did this to give closer attention to his business, which must be transacted after hours spent as a city detective.

HOOVER AD ARRESTS ORDERED

"Arrest every solicitor for the Herbert Hoover booklet!"

That bombshell was tossed into every police station in the city today by Police Supt. Peter P. Walsh as an order from Mayor Kline. It instructed the police force to lay hands on all solicitors who were found gathering advertising for the more or less mysterious manual which is said to be nothing more than a racket to collect fancy prices from joint-keepers and racketeers. The plan to publish the manual was first revealed by the Sun-Telegraph.

Walsh issued the order for the arrests after a conference with the Mayor. These solicitors, the superintendent said, had told prospective advertisers that County Commissioners E. V. Babcock and Joseph G. Armstrong were sponsoring the program—an assertion strongly denied by those commissioners today.

SEEKS VICTIMS' AID

Walsh urged "victims" of the solicitors to notify the police and he instructed his subordinates to round up the guilty solicitors on charges of false pretense.

The booklet is operated under the title "Hoover Pittsburgh Republican Progressive League." Its treasurer is J. Edward Garlitz, assistant secretary to Mayor Kline, who has been reprimanded by the Mayor for his association with the manual. One of the real sponsors is said to be Walter Lloyd, head of the employment bureau of the State Department of Labor and Industry.

FOX COLLAPSES AT GALLOWS AS HE PAYS WITH HIS LIFE

By WILLIAM PARKER.
International News Service.

SAN QUENTIN PRISON, Cal., Oct. 19.—In a state of physical collapse, his bravado and pretended coolness gone, William Edward Hickman, "The Fox," 21, of Kansas City, Mo., was hanged here at 10:10 o'clock this morning (1:10 p. m. Pittsburgh time) for the kidnaping and murder of 12-year-old Marian Parker, of Los Angeles.

Twenty-two seconds after the condemned man had entered the death chamber the trap was sprung. Fifteen minutes later he was declared dead by prison doctors.

Hickman's iron nerve failed him just as death beckoned.

He fainted just before the trap was sprung. This declaration was made without qualification by Official Executioner Robert Hogaboom.

Approximately 200 persons, none of them women, were spectators. Two men fainted, one of them being Detective Dick Lucas of the Los Angeles Police Department. He is a veteran officer and obtained from Hickman a full confession of the crime after Hickman's capture at Pendleton, Ore.

Hickman walked to the scaffold with a firm almost military-like tread as Father William A. Fleming of the Church of San Rafael, spoke the "Litany of the Saints" for those about to die and Hickman repeated the responses.

The official executioner had hardly raised his right hand as a signal for the trap to drop when the tense spectators saw Hickman's knees begin to bend. His body sagged and he was practicaly hanging from the noose when the three concealed men in the box-like room at the edge of the gallows cut three cotton strings, one of which freed the iron weight which in turn released the trap.

The executioner who has officiated at many hangings at San Quentin Prison, alone realized that Hickman had fainted, many of the spectators believing that when Hickman's body sagged it indicated that he was falling through the trap.

The lethal parade entered the chamber a few seconds before 10:10 o'clock. James B. Holohan, tall, broad-shouldered, stern-faced man, was in the lead.

DEATH MARCH

He was followed by Father William A. Fleming, pastor of the Church of San Rafael, who has been spiritual adviser to Hickman. The priest, a significant figure in his black cassock, was repeating the Litany of the Saints for those who are about to die.

The litany began as Hickman stepped out of the death cell, when Father Fleming commenced speaking the words:

"Lord have mercy; Lord have mercy."

In a weak voice Hickman responded:

"Christ have mercy."

With rapid steps the group, two guards alongside Hickman and the official executioner, Robert Hogaboom, in front, walked through the two wooden doors leading from the death cell to the execution chamber. All the while Father Fleming continued the litany, with Hickman making half-audible responses.

As they neared the first of the 13 steps, Father Fleming spoke softly:

"All ye holy virgins and widows; all ye men and women,

PHILA. TO AID HERE; SLOT COINS GONE

There were two important developments today in the county grand jury investigation of graft:

1—An estimated $35,000 in nickels, quarters and half-dollars, found in slot machines seizezd by constables of Justice of the Peace W. L. Baker of Bellevue was never accounted for. Asistant District Attorney Andrew T. Park declared.

2—In Philadelphia, District Attorney Samuel H. Gardner established with District Attorney Monaghan, of that city, an alliance to help each other in their crusades to drive out vice and collusion.

Park, directing the probe in the absence of Gardner, said that testimony showed the seizing of 243 slot machines by Baker's constables since March 10, but that reports to the courts of these seizures failed to bring out what disposition had been made of the money in the machines when they were taken. Park estimated each machine contained $100.

Monaghan, who has been waging war against racketeers in Philadelphia for two months, recessed his special grand jury today to spend two hours with Gardner in the Quaker City.

MAY JOIN FORCES

From Philadelphia came reports that the two prosecutors intended to join forces in uncovering any underworld alliances that spread from the one city to the other—a rum ring, possibly. From all this it was inferred that in Allegheny county

CONVICTED GRAFTER MOVES FOR RELEASE

NEW YORK, Oct. 19.—(INS.)—The first definite move to free former Borough President Maurice E. Connolly from his cell in the penitentiary on Welfare Island, was made today when Supreme Court Justice Edward Riegelman, of Queens, ordered the prosecution to appear for arguments on the issuance of a writ of reasonable doubt.

On application of Max D. Steuer, counsel for Connolly, papers were served on District Attorney Richard S. Newcombe and Attorney General Albert Ottinger, hailing them into court Monday morning to show cause why the certificate should not be granted in Connolly's behalf.

If the defense wins that primary skirmish, it may then ask that Connolly, under sentence of a year's imprisonment for conspiracy in the $16,000,000 Queens sewer scandal, be freed on bail pending an appeal.

Connolly today changed his name for a number. He receives the numerals by which he will be known while a prisoner. He will be fingerprinted, and his photograph will be taken, for the rogues' gallery. Then he will be designated to the labor gang, working either in the laundry, the brush, broom or shoe factory, the printing company or the knitting squad.

Connolly was driven to the penitentiary in his own limousine, with his own liveried chauffeur at the wheel. After being admitted he changed from his costly clothing to the regulation blue denim which he will wear for the next year.

ROPE ENDS 'THE FOX'

WILLIAM EDWARD HICKMAN

MARION PARKER

All ended this afternoon for William Edward Hickman when a trapdoor at famous San Quentin (Cal.) prison snapped and dropped his body into space from which a waiting noose jerked his life, demanded by society in payment for his henious murder of little Marion Parker, Los Angeles schoolgirl.

JAIL SEALS FORNEY'S LIPS ON RACKETEERS

Has Alfred W. Forney, big gambling machine operator, and so-called "king of the racketeers," reneged?

Has he gone back on his promise to "tell all"—a promise made to Judge F. P. Schoonmaker in the United States District Court a few weeks ago, just after he had pleaded guilty to conspiracy to violate the prohibition law, and while he was hoping to win the court's lenience?

Or has he not been allowed to follow his own inclination? Has his mouth been closed by external influence, against which he is powerless to cope?

A Sun-Telegraph reporter, seeking answers to these questions, visited the county jail, where Forney is serving a six-month sentence. Permission to see the prisoner was refused.

"What do you want to see him about?" demanded David Harris, chief deputy warden, who has charge. Warden John McNeil being away.

"I wish to ask him if he would be willing to testify before the Allegheny County grand jury which is investigating vice and graft."

REFUSES INTERVIEW

"Oh I can't let you in to see him about that."

"Will you admit me if I get a letter from the United States Attorney saying he has no objection to my talking to Forney?"

"He wouldn't give it to you. But even if he did I wouldn't let you in. I couldn't offord to take the chance. You wouldn't, either, if you were in my place."

United States Attorney John D. Meyer said that under no circum-

Original Mason Lodge Wins Badge Suit

HARRISBURG, Pa., Oct. 19.—The Ancient Free and Accepted Masons have no right to the use in Pennsylvania of the nine emblems they in the past have used in common with the Free and Accepted Masons.

This was the decision of a jury in the Dauphin County Court handed down today.

The Ancient Free and Accepted Masons is the younger of the two organizations. The trial lasted five days. Judge E. M. Biddle, Jr., of Carlisle, who is not a member of either organization, presided at special judge in the case.

Under the verdict and the provisions of the state law for the registration of insignia by fraternal orders, the members of the Ancient Free and Accepted Masons can no longer wear or otherwise use the nine emblems and insignia.

HOPE LOST FOR BABY PLANE

CROYDON, England, Oct. 19.—That Commander H. C. MacDonald has joined that ghostly escadrille of those who yielded up their lives in attempts to span the Atlantic Ocean by airplane, was the belief forced today upon Croydon airdrome and air ministry officials.

MacDonald

MacDonald this morning had been missing more than two days, whereas his tiny Moth machine was fueled for only about 20 hours. He was approximately 30 hours overdue at this airport, where he had expected to land in the baby plane.

The radio station at Valentia, Irish Free State, reported at 1:30 p. m. that no word had been received concerning MacDonald. Only one ship reported sighting the flier after he left Harbor Grace on Thursday afternoon. That was a Dutch steamer which claimed to have sighted a plane between 600 and 700 miles northeast of St. Johns, N. F., shortly after midnight yesterday morning.

It is feared here that MacDonald lost his course and that his frail Moth plane was forced down at sea.

HICKMAN LOSES NERVE AS TRAP IS SPRUNG

saints of God, be merciful."

Hickman's lips moved in response with the words:

"Intercede for me, spare me, O Lord. Graciously hear us, Lord."

By now the group were on the platform of the scaffolding.

"MERCY!"

Father Fleming began to speak softly again as he stood close by Hickman's side:

"We commend thee, O Lord, the soul of thy servant, William Edward Hickman, and we beseech thee, O Lord Jesus Christ, Saviour of the world, that Thou wouldst not refuse to receive into the bosom of thy patriarchs for whose sake Thou dost mercifully come down upon earth."

It seemed to spectators an eternity in itself before the grim work of placing about Hickman the various paraphernalia for the hanging was completed.

It was only a few seconds. The warden touched Father Fleming on the arm and indicated where he was to stand. This did not interrupt the litany the priest was repeating.

The executioner, Hogaboom, placed a long black cap-like hood over Hickman's head. It fell almost to his shoulders.

The hangman then pulled down the ⅝-inch rope which had been placed in a hanging position on the scaffold so it would not be seen by the prisoner as he walked up to the platform.

Hogaboom then placed the rope about Hickman's neck, the heavy knot directly beneath the youth's right ear. The purpose of this being to render him unconscious if the fall of some five feet and more did not instantly break his neck.

The executioner and Charles Alston and Fred Hogaboom, a brother of the executioner, worked in absolute harmony, their movements being clock-like in the precision.

One guard adjusted a strap around Hickman's feet. His hands already had been strapped at his sides, giving him a stiffly and grewsomely formal appearance.

TRAP IS SPRUNG

The other guard dropped the black cap over Hickman's head and shoulders.

The executioner, having less to do than the others, was finished before the two guards. He glanced quickly at them as they looked toward him. An unspoken signal told him the last moment had come.

He raised his right hand. It was the signal for the three men in the little box-like room on one side of the gallows. Hardly had he raised his hand when these men must have slashed at the three small cotton cords, one connected with a heavy iron ball which in turn released the trap through which Hickman's body shot to death.

The two prison doctors, Dr. Blecker and Dr. Robinson, waiting inside the roped square at the foot of the gibbet, stepped forward as Hickman's body dangled momentarily and began to curve with the motion of the rope.

Dr. Blecker put up his right hand and stopped the movement of the body. He then mounted a small ladder, unbuttoned Hickman's black blouse and placed a stethescope over his head.

Standing near Hickman's dangling feet Dr. Robinson reached up and grasped the slayer's left wrist.

Hickman had clutched the hem of his coat with his right hand as he dropped and the fingers of his left hand were clenched tightly.

His body, however, swayed to the left before it was stopped in its movement.

A felt slipper dropped from his right foot to the rough board floor with a sound which, even with several hundred men present, was plainly heard while the doctors were at work.

3 Spehar Slayers Get Life

Three of four confessed slayers of John Spehar, Lawrenceville saloonkeeper, were adjudged guilty of first degree murder in Criminal Court today and were sentenced to life imprisonment. A fourth, an inmate of the penitentiary, was held guilty of second degree murder and sentenced from 25½ to 43½ years on the murder and robbery charges.

The three, Carl Lucas, 19, of 181 Forty-fifth street; Anthony Marino, 29, of 1201 Sheffield street, and Frank Skalski, 22, of 1607 Fifth avenue, had confessed and pleaded guilty. The fourth is Charles Bowers, 21, now serving a term in Western Penitentiary for robbery, who also pleaded guilty.

Mrs. Marie Spehar, widow, who had been held by a coroner's jury for her husband's slaying, but later exonerated, was a witness. She told how her husband had been held up, beaten and shot the night of March 4 as he was putting his automobile away.

SQUIRE, AIDE ON TRIAL

Justice of the Peace John Popp, Jr., of Castle Shannon, and his contable, Mike Blazier, were placed on trial in Criminal Court today. Popp charged with conspiracy and Blazier of conspiracy, larceny and fraudulent conversion.

AVIATOR TAKES BLAME FOR CRASH

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Oct. 19.—(INS.)—The injured pilot of the huge Junkers sightseeing plane today assumed full responsibility for the crash yesterday which resulted in the death of a banker, delegate to the Investment Bankers' Association convention here.

George King, pilot, today denied that a terrified passenger grabbed the control stick and sent the plane crashing to the ground, as had been reported.

Pliny Jewell, former president of the association, and a member of the firm of Coffin & Burr, Inc., of Boston, has been rushed to the operating room in a last effort to save his life. His wife, a daughter and a son are at his bedside.

W. Octave Chanute, of Denver, died of a fractured skull two hours after the crash. Seven other persons were injured.

Convicted Anti-Wet Pardoned

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Oct. 19.—(AP.)—Gov. Ed Jackson today issued a pardon for Dr. E. S. Shumaker, superintendent of the Indiana Anti-Saloon League, who this morning was taken to the state penal farm to begin serving a 60-day sentence for contempt of the Indiana Supreme Court.

The pardon was issued before Dr. Shumaker had reached the state farm at Putnamville. It was given, according to Pliny Wolford, secretary to the Governor, because the Governor believed the penalty "excessive."

Dr. Shumaker, however, will have to pay the $250 assessed by the Supreme Court.

The head of the Dry League in Indiana was found guilty nearly two years ago of contempt of the Supreme Court of Indiana for statements contained in the annual report of the League. The report criticized the decisions of members of the court in certain liquor cases.

FINE STUDENTS FOR ATTACK ON GIRL

Attacked by two companions in an automobile, during a drive through Schenley Park last night, Caroline Pinco, 19, of 207 Boguet street, bit one of her assailants and kicked the windshield out of the car before her captors released her.

In Morals Court today, two college students, John Och, 20, of 114 Ruch street, and Paul Jennings, 20, of 162 Whitney street, companions of the girl, were sentenced to pay $50 each.

Miss Pinco said she accepted an invitation for a ride and during the drive one of her companions took $7 from her pocketbook. Jennings admitted taking $7 from the girl's pocketbook, but said he was only joking.

MAY JOIN TWO CITIES IN PROBE

Gardner had come upon evidence which showed a definite connection between racketeers of the two cities.

Monaghan's crusade in Philadelphia has gained him national attention. He has already had indicted several police officials and revealed the names of police captains and their underlings on the payroll of powerful bootleggers.

With Gardner in Philadelphia, Assistant District Attorney Andrew T. Park directed the presentation of evidence before the Allegheny county grand jury today, swerving the investigation into a probe of the activities of raiding constables.

Summonses had been served on four constables, an alderman and two justices of the peace. District Attorney Samuel H. Gardner expected to call at least eight minor magistrates with their constables and records before completing this angle of the investigation.

TO PROBE DRY RAIDS

There were about 25 other witnesses, including several from Heidelberg, on hand today. They were M. G. Herney, 1500 Olympia street, Mt. Washington; Frank Henry, manager of Savoy Hotel, 19 East Lacock street; David Wright, Heidelberg; Frank Rogina, Heidelberg; Peter Huellen, poolroom owner of Heidelberg; Catherine Coppey, Heidelberg; L. P. Jones, of 4623 Liberty avenue; James Polis, of Semple street; John Poulos, of 2734 Penn avenue; Louis Kugras, of 310 Federal street; Frank Wittman, of 1750 Carson street; Henry Hoeflich, of Heidelberg; Hyman Bess, of 72 Crawford street; Jim Pass, Sharpsburg; Jacob Karparski, Sharpsburg; Neil Carrick, of Heidelberg; John Schlagel, of 22 East Park way; Harry Zimmer, of North avenue, Millvale, and Frank P. Manuel, of 2735 Penn avenue.

The squires and constables are to be asked what disposition has been made of slot machines that have been seized in raids made within the last year. According to Gardner there are no records to show what has been done with hundreds of the machines seized throughout the county. Gardner also is anxious to know what has been done with the money that was in the seized boxes as it lawfully should have been turned over to the county.

The jury also was desirous of knowing something of the system under which constables conduct liquor raids with assistance of prohibition agents and the squires' records were to be scrutinized for disposition of fines and costs resulting from such raids.

While the jury attempted to learn whether the raiding constables were impelled only by devotion to duty, county detectives were developing another angle of the probe—an inquiry into the baseball pool alleged to flourish under police patronage on the North Side—Inspector Charles Faulkner's district.

Chicago Hails Smith

By GEORGE R. HOLMES.
International News Service.

CHICAGO, Oct. 19.—Gov. Alfred E. Smith today turned the full candlepower of the famous smile, the grin that brought him the title of "The Happy Warrior," upon 250,000 Chicagoans who lined the curbs and jammed street intersections where his automobile stopped for brief moments upon his two-hour tour of the city.

That smile took Chicago by storm. A constant roaring cheer sounded as the Governor rode north through the boulevards to Evanston along the north shore of Lake Michigan and south to the parks.

Officially that triumphal march was just an inspection trip by the Democratic presidential nominee, but reduced to practical politics it was the challenge of the Democracy of Illinois to the Republicans of the state. It was sending Gov. Smith directly to the voters for their approval.

GREAT OVATION

It was one great ovation all through the downtown loop section. Men cheered and women screamed.

Before the start of the procession Gov. Smith ate his usual hearty breakfast, but varied the usual fried eggs for scrambled ones and increased the usual three to four eggs.

Practical politicians of the two opposing parties here in Chicago are as far apart as the poles regarding the outcome of the presidential election in Illinois.

Such Democratic leaders as Tom Donovan, successor to the late George Brennan as Democratic national committeeman from Illinois and state chairman as well, has told Gov. Smith that he will come up-state to the Cook county line on even terms with Herbert Hoover and that he will carry Cook county by between 100,000 and 200,000. This would give him the state by a wide margin.

While Democratic leaders have been pouring news like this into Gov. Smith's attentive ear, former Representative James W. Good, of Iowa, Hoover manager of the western headquarters, with equal confidence asserts that Illinois will return a normal Republican majority for Hoover, which he estimates at not less than 500,000. Coolidge's majority over Davis four years ago was 876,000.

Apparently there was no reconciliation of these widely conflicting claims today. The Democratic leaders who surround Gov. Smith on his three-day visit to the state are confident. The Republican leaders, domiciled a half dozen blocks away, are no less optimistic. Some of the practical politicians in both parties are going to wake up on the morning after election with a headache.

The parade today was just the beginning of a busy day for the Governor. He speaks tonight and it is reported that at least 200,000 people will strive for seats. No reserve tickets have been issued, so there is expected to be a mad scramble.

NAMES, PLACES ORDERED IN RUM RING INDICTMENTS

Indicted defendants in the Federal rum probe who complained to the courts that United States Attorney John D. Meyer was vague in his charges against them scored a victory today when Judge R. M. Gibson instructed Meyer to be specific. "Name names and places," the court ordered Meyer, ineffect.

The order was a favorable answer to the motion filed by the defendants for bills of particulars. Their plea was that they couldn't defend themselves when Meyer refused to reveal the detailed charges.

Judge Gibson, in his opinion, set forth that the government attorney in certain instances had used general language, and frequently in an obscure way; that no definite information had been given.

PITTSBURGH TO GREET ZEPPELIN THURSDAY

By KARL H. VON WIEGAND.

(Copyright, 1928, by King Features Syndicate, Inc. Reproduction prohibited in whole or part.)

NEW YORK, Oct. 19.—Dr. Hugo Eckener, commander of the Graf Zeppelin, is overwhelmed by the enthusiasm of the American people over his achievement and the reception and welcome that has been given him without end. Just as he was starting for Lakehurst he said to me:

"I wish you would express for me, through the Hearst newspapers, my gratefulness and very deep appreciation of the cordiality of the welcome given the crew of the Graf Zeppelin and myself and the courtesies and kindnesses that have been showered on us."

Probably next Thursday morning, very early, the Graf Zeppelin will leave Lakehurst direct for St. Louis, with a number of invited guests. The route, it is expected, will go via Pittsburgh and Cincinnati. The commodore wants to reach Scott Field at St. Louis before dark. Capt. Hans Von Schiller, "ground pilot" of the Graf Zeppelin, will be sent on ahead to St. Louis to make all arrangements for landing.

Dr. Eckener and his crew will spend the night in St. Louis and expect to leave the next morning for Chicago, Milwaukee and Detroit. In that world's motor car center, the Graf Zeppelin will be moored to Henry Ford's mooring mast long enough for Eckener to participate in a luncheon there.

From Detroit the course will be via Cleveland to Buffalo, thence over Rochester and Albany to New York and Lakehurst.

Stories that have been printed that the Graf Zeppelin has been bought by the Spanish Zeppelin Company are not true. That company had an option on the Graf Zeppelin which expired October 1. As Spain has no hangar yet to house a Zeppelin, the option was not exercised. Dr. Eckener declared there was no intention of selling the Graf Zeppelin as long as it is Germany's only ship.

WILLIAM PENN HOTEL TO OPEN OLIVER AVE. ARCADE

Obstacles to rounding off the corner of the sidewalk at Grant street and Oliver avenue to relieve traffic congestion were removed by an agreement effected by Director Edward G. Lang, of the Department of Public Works, with owners of the William Penn Hotel.

Proposals were made to the hotel company while the widening of Grant street was in progress to build an arcade for pedestrians in the addition to its building at Grant street and Oliver avenue so that the sidewalk could be reduced by eliminating the sharp corner.

City engineers pointed out that the area gained would open an extra lane of vehicles from Grant street and Bigelow boulevard to enter Oliver avenue.

Hotel executives rejected the proposal on the ground that it would necessitate a drastic change in completed plans for the addition to the building and result in a considerable loss of area for hotel rooms.

Lang continued the negotiations with the Hotel Company and yesterday addressed a letter to Council in which he stated:

"We are pleased to advise you that the management of the William Penn Hotel has expressed a willingness to arcade its building at the corner of Grant street and Oliver avenue, so that we may carry out the desire to widen this intersection, which we struggled so vainly to secure when Grant street improvement was under way.

"Plans will be submitted by the engineers and architects of the William Penn Hotel Company for the rounding of this corner, and we have no doubt that with the co-operation offered by the Hotel Company to this department, this much-desired improvement may be completed."

INDEPENDENT FORCES BUS COMPANY TO ACT

By GEORGE H. SNYDER.

The Pittsburgh Motor Coach Company made no attempt to serve Oakmont until after finding that an independent operator was planning to enter the field, R. B. Blackburn, secretary and treasurer of the Allegheny Valley Motor Coach Company, stated yesterday.

The independant application was filed with the Public Service Commission on August 3 and the hearing date was set for August 28. The Pittsburgh Motor Coach Company filed an application on August 27.

The two proposed lines are almost identical in route as far as Oakmont. The Pittsburgh Motor Coach line would terminate at the point while the Allegheny Valley line would extend to New Kensington.

In this similiar cases the Pittsburgh Motor Coach Company has developed its bus lines only to prevent independant buses from entering the field.

Both lines would charge a 50-cent fare from Pittsburgh to Oakmont with lower fares to intermediate points. The minimum on the Pittsburgh Motor Coach busses would be 25 cents, while on the independent busses it would be 10 cents.

The fares on the Allegheny Motor Coaches would average about 3 cents a mile, according to Mr. Blackburn. The maximum would be 75 cents from Pittsburgh to New Kensington. No short hauls within the city of Pittsburgh would be taken, so that it would not directly compete with the present bus lines. It also would not compete with the independent line on Frankstown road, although the proposed Pittsburgh Motor Coach line would.

MORE WOULD BENEFIT

Mr. Blackburn also stated that by giving service to New Kensington as well as Oakmont, his line would be available to 66,000 people, compared with only 15,000 on the Pittsburgh Motor Coach route.

At the hearing before the Public Service Commission on the application of the Pittsburgh Motor Coach Company yesterday, Mr. Blackburn testified that there would not be sufficient traffic to support two lines to Oakmont. He stated that his company was capitalized at $25,000 and that this would be increased as demands for service warranted.

Fred Shoemaker, counsel for the Allegheny Motor Coach Company and the Borough of Oakmont, submitted as evidence a resolution passed by the borough council which stated that the proposed service of the Allegheny Motor Coach Company was preferred to that of the Pittsburgh Motor Coach Company.

Jaworski To Return Secretly

Secrecy will veil the return of Paul Jaworski, payroll robber, to this city from Cleveland, where he is held for slaying a policeman, Chief George W. Murren of the county detectives announced today.

Detective John Geisler obtained the signature of Gov. Vic Donahey at Columbus, O., today to requisition papers for the return of Jaworski, he wired Chief Murren. He then went to Cleveland.

Fearing that an attempt may be made by Jaworski's pals to rescue him, Chief Murren and Detectives Michael McDermott and Joseph Bodner will go to Cleveland tonight to join Geisler. Jaworski will be returned when the detectives believe it best, there being no announcement made of their return.

E. C. Stanton, Cleveland's public prosecutor, was in Pittsburgh yesterday and he agreed to turn Jaworski over to Allegheny county authorities after he had been assurred that there was little chance of Jaworski escaping the electric chair. When the bandit escaped from the county jail here more than a year ago he was under death sentence.

COOLIDGE AND HOOVER WELCOME ZEP CREW

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19.—Dr. Hugh Eckener and officers of the Graf Zeppelin came to Washington today to receive from President Coolidge and high government officials the honors and plaudits of a nation for their flight.

They arrived from Philadelphia by train, quite in contrast to the fleeting visit last Monday, when aboard the monster liner of the air, they sailed majestically into the national capital out of a murky sky. Thousands greeted them then, jamming rooftops and streets to catch a glimpse of the Zeppelin, just in from Germany. A bedlam of noise soared up to them.

Today, only a small crowd was on hand at the station. But what the early risers lacked in numbers they made up in enthusiasm.

WREATH ON HERO'S TOMB

Today the World War was forgotten as Dr. Eckener, flanked by members of his crew and officers of the American Army and Navy, solemnly placed a wreath on the tomb of the Unknown Soldier in Arlington National Cemetery.

It was a dramatic scene. Hardened veteran of the air as he is, Dr. Eckener hesitated in silence for a moment ere he stepped to the base of the American shrine and gently deposited the wreath tied in colors of the German republic. The officers snapped to salute.

Hardly 10 years ago such monsters of the air as the Graf Zeppelin carried death and destruction to the fighting comrades the Unknown Soldier symbolizes.

Today they are engaged in the peaceful pursuit of linking friendly continents by air, carrying passengers and mail safely over land and sea.

After leaving Arlington, the fliers went to Bolling Field, where they were divided into groups and taken aloft in Army and Navy planes to view the city.

The fliers' train arrived at 5:39 a. m. today, but they did not leave the station until after 7. About 250 persons were present.

The sun was peeping through a misty sky as they rode in an automobile procession to the Carlton Hotel, where they remained a short time before going to the White House for breakfast at 8 o'clock with President Coolidge. A distinguished company was gathered around the presidential board to welcome the fliers.

Laying aside his political problems, Herbert Hoover participated in the national capital's ovation to the crew of the trans-Atlantic dirigible.

Led by Dr. Eckener, the Zeppelin crew called on Hoover at his headquarters, following their breakfast with President Coolidge. The Republican nominee warmly congratulated the German visitors on the courage and daring of their trans-Atlantic flight.

SEES PEACE MISSION

In a letter to Eckener, Hoover expressed the opinion that dirigibles of the type of the Graf Zeppelin will have a greater future mission in peace than in military maneuvers. He cited their value to travel and commerce over long distances, and, as a humanitarian, suggested they could be used to open quick communication to communities isolated by catastrophe.

"Please accept my heartiest congratulations on the splendid success of your second daring flight from Germany to America," Hoover wrote Eckener on the dirigible's arrival. "This is a long way from Count Zeppelin's balloon observations during our Civil War. You have proved once mere the feasibility of safe trans-Atlantic flights with dirigibles.

"In addition to their value to commerce and travel, their demonstrated capacity for carrying heavy burdens opens up vistas of quick communication with communities isolated by catastrophe—in other words, they promise a great broadening of human contact.

"I sincerely hope that I shall be in Washington when you and your brave crew are here, and that I shall have the pleasure of meeting you all."

In response to this invitation, the Zeppelin crew called on Hoover to receive his congratulations in person.

MEMBERS OF PARTY

Among those in the party were: Dr. Eckener, Albert Grzesinsky, Prussian Minister of the Interior; Count Brandenstein Zeppelin, son-in-law of the late Count Zeppelin; Capt. CONNELLSVILLE "GAS" WAR HELPS AUTOIST

CONNELLSVILLE, Pa., Oct. 19.—A gasoline war is raging here. As a reprisal against a small concern which has steadily been underselling the larger companies, the latter have forced the price down to 20 and 23 cents. Small dealers have followed the lead of the larger producers.

GAS STATION EXPLOSION INJURES TWO WORKERS

GREENSBURG, Pa., Oct. 19.—When gasoline fumes ignited from a gas stove, Guy Andrews, 25, and Floyd Wright, 22, were severely burned. They were working in the plant of the Harrison Fuel Station, Jeannette.

4 SHOT ON FIRST HUNTING DAY

HARRISBURG, Oct. 19.—(AP.)—Numerous accidents marked the opening of the Pennsylvania small game shooting season yesterday.

Although the weather was not ideal for shunting, many hunters took to the woods to seek wild turkey, squirrel, ruffed grouse, male ringneck pheasants and Virginia pheasants.

Near Selinsgrove three school children were peppered with shot and had to be taken to a Sunbury hospital for treatment. Near Lewistown, Jonathan Gemberling was shot in the chest and face and had to have hospital attention. The fact that he had just lifted his hand to his face to brush back his hair probably saved his sight.

Two men received treatment for gunshot wounds at Carlisle as a result of getting in the way of shots directed at small game.

RAIN PREVENTS WOODS FIRE SET BY HUNTERS

CONNELLSVILLE, Pa., Oct. 19.—A forest fire menace, which had confronted fire wardens with the opening of the hunting season yesterday, was offset by the first rain in 32 days.

W. VA. COURT LIFTS POLICE 'RED' BAN; OHIOAN JAILED

WHEELING, W. Va., Oct. 19.—An order from the State Court of Appeals granting the Workers' Party (Communist) a temporary injunction was filed against Mayor William Steen, Chief of Police George Buchwald and City Manager T. Y. Beckett here yesterday.

They are restrained from "interfering in any way with the holding of any political meeting by the Workers' Party in the city of Wheeling." The injunction was asked following the arrest of Workers' Party speakers on three different occasions in Ohio county.

Those arrested were Scott Nearing, candidate for governor of New Jersey and internationally known journalist and writer; James Henderson, of Pittsburgh, and S. L. Kearns, of Lansing, O., organizers of the party.

STEUBENVILLE, O., Oct. 19.—Refusing to call off a political meeting he had opened in front of the Jefferson county court house last night, Frank Henderson, of Cleveland, an organizer for the Communist-Workers' Party, was pulled from the platform by police and lodged in jail on a disorderly conduct charge.

Henderson had just introduced William Patterson, candidate for governor after having been informed that the permit for the meeting had been revoked by Mayor Oliver Conley. Henderson protested his arrest and through Patterson, said he would appeal to Gov. Donahey for the right of free speech during the remainder of the campaign, using last night's case as a test for the courts.

DALLAS FEARS SPOOFING IN MONARCHIST CAMPAIGN

DALLAS, Tex., Oct. 19.—(AP.)—City fathers of Dallas almost are ready to believe they are being "spoofed" as the American Civil Liberties Union sends its offer to help Monarchists and Communists obtain "rights of free speech" in Dallas.

"Who is your candidate King," inquired a telegram from an official of the union and addressed to Richard Potts, who styles himself "secretary-general of the Royalist League of America."

The Royalists, who, like the Communists, failed to obtain use of the City Hall auditorium for meetings, accepted an offer of help from the union and in turn offered to help the union obtain rights of assemblage for the Communists.

Tuesday, Benjamin Gitlow, vice presidential candidate of the Workers' (Communist) party of America, was refused use of the auditorium. Wednesday, Potts, the Royalist official, announced that he had obtained a permit to use the same hall for a Sunday meeting.

Yesterday the permit was cancelled until the city commission could consider it, and Street Commissioner Arthur Reinhart announced that the hall was not available for anyone who wished to change the existing forms of government. "Soap boxes are all we have for them," he said.

Potts was indignant at the Civil Liberties Union telegram and said:

"Will gladly help you if denied rights of free speech and assembly. Will you join us in effort to extend same rights for Communists whose vice presidential candidate was denied use of City Hall auditorium? Who is your candidate for King?"

Potts' answer read: "Will co-operate with you in securing hearing for Gitlow and Communists or even for Straton and Fundamentalists, provided I do not have to hear the latter. American Legion wants Mussolini, but my personal candidate is George Bernard Shaw with Will Rogers for vice king."

EUROPA'S TOKIO CRACK-UP DUE TO LACK OF AIRPORTS

By BARON G. VON HUENEFELD,
(Aboard Airplane Europa on flight around world, en route to Tokio from Berlin.)
(Copyright, 1928, by Universal Service. World rights reserved.)

TOKIO, Japan, Oct. 19.—From Germany to Japan: The Europa's goodwill flight ended with a forced landing in a rice field along the Tamagawa River several miles from Tokio this afternoon.

The occupants providentially are safe, but the plane suffered. The propeller was bent and the direction indicator was damaged when the Europa mired in the mud two feet in depth.

A lone laborer discovered us and, greatly excited, notified the police who assisted us to throw a tent over the plane and to improvise a fence around it so that the curious could not approach too near.

Soon a throng of men, women and children from a nearby rice field village, in this semi-wilderness between Osaka and Tokio, headed by the master of the settlement, came plodding through the mud to greet us.

Gracious hospitality was offered us in the tea house of the little town. We drank tea and ate rice cakes amid great bowing and questioning. Our conversations were carried on through a police interpreter.

To avoid a typhoon supposed to have been hovering sinisterly in the vicinity, we had left Shanghai in the dead of night. Thereafter we encountered head winds, side winds, rain and fog as we flew across the North China Sea. The mist compelled us to steer by dead reckoning.

After leaving Osaka our outlook was discouraging on account of the numerous geographic barriers ahead. We were only a few hundred feet above the Hakone Mountain Range when Pilot Linder was forced to turn the Europa seaward again and follow the coast line.

For one hour we circled the city of Tokio, unable to find a suitable landing place. We looked down on hundreds of rice fields, but did not succeed in sighting the Tachikawa airfield, where throngs of people were awaiting us.

When at last we alighted in the deep mud of this rice field a flock of welcoming planes led by an army plane came from Tokio, and circled above our stranded machine and dropped messages of greeting down to me.

Personally, I am feeling the effects of the marked change in climate of the flight from India. The nights of Japan have a touch of chill. However, I am in splendid spirits.

When we left Shanghai we were accorded a rousing farewell by officers of the Chinese army and aviators of the British Royal Air Force. Tonight Wilhelm Solf, German ambassador to Japan, entertained us informally.

We expect the next six days to be busy ones—filled with entertainment and with inspection and work on the Europa. Since our leaving Berlin, September 18, we have flown 18,000 kilometers.

ENGINEERS ADOPT UNIFORM TRAFFIC PLAN FOR CITIES

An elaborate plan for national uniform traffic signs, signals and markings was adopted today at the opening session of a two-day meeting of the American Engineering Council's administrative board at the William Penn Hotel. The group represents the leading traffic engineers and societies of the country.

The plan is contained in a lenghty report which analyzes the data obtained in a survey of traffic conditions in 100 cities. The survey was made under the direction of a committee headed by W. B. Powell of Buffalo.

The committee makes 83 specific recommendations, constituting an American standard, for the establishment of better and more uniform practice as a means of increasing safety and facilitating traffic on city streets. It urges general use of this standard throughout the country.

ERRORS CITED

"Some of the outstanding tendencies disclosed by these surveys justify an emphatic word of warning," says the report.

"It is clearly obvious that some cities are making two fundamental errors in installing street traffic signs, signals and markings, the report states. These errors are: Placing devices without adequate study of conditions which their uses is intended to improve; and employing traffic control devices at places and times not justified.

"If these tendencies continue," the report declares, "the inevitable result will be a public recognition of the errors and a consequent neglect, or unfriendliness towards traffic signs and signals. This neglect will lead to the ultimate defeat of useful and effective methods of traffic control. Such fundamental errors, however, can be avoided by obtaining expert engineering advice before any system is established."

The report also deals with the placement of traffisc signals by police officers without consulting experienced engineers. The importance of the signals is stressed as regards to the pedestrian and traffic movements and is stressed and "impatient and reckless drivers" who disregard the signals are condemned as hindering the effectiveness of such systems.

The sessions continue through tomorrow with a dinner tonight given by the Engineering Society of Western Pennsylvania.

A PROTECTING APRON.

Printed linen was chosen to make this practical apron. Being sleeveless it is cool and comfortable, with straps over the shoulders, supporting crosswise yoke bands. Ample and convenient pockets are arranged on the front, and hold the belt. To make yoke bands and belt of contrasting material will require ¾ yard 27 inches wide. To finish with bias binding as illustrated will require 8 yards.

MELLON LAUDED AT FOUNDER'S DAY FETE

FOUNDER'S DAY CLOSES WITH DINNER

A dinner in the stately marble foyer of Carnegie Music Hall, with Secretary of the Treasury Andrew W. Mellon as guest of honor, last night closed the thirty-second annual celebration of Founder's Day at Carnegie Institute.

Secretary Mellon was the principal speaker at the formal Founder's Day exercises held yesterday afternoon in the music hall, discussing in detail the plans for beautifying Washington in order that the capital city may "express the soul of America."

"It has been said that, in evolving the skyscraper, we have made the first original contribution to architecture since the Gothic," said Secretary Mellon. "Certainly in adapting architecture to the needs of modern conditions and crowded spaces we have produced something that is expressive of human aspiration and human need. If we can give to our office buildings something of the beauty of Gothic cathedrals or model our banks and railroad stations after Greek temples, we shall in time provide a magnificent setting for the requirements of modern civilization."

Introduced by Col. Samuel Harden Church, president of the institute, as one whose achievements have "made him incomparably the leader among the world's financiers," Secretary Mellon received a prolonged ovation from the large audience at the exercises.

"As a banker, Mr. Mellon has used his great powers of executive and organizing capacity in the development of the natural resources of his country, distributing the product at a lower cost while furnishing employment to many thousands of men and women," said Col. Church. "He has helped restore a hundred institutions from solvency to prosperity, building up discouraged men who had lost their confidence with their credit, and in some cases demanding no other security than that of stable character. Always a lover of peace, if political foes attack him we see him spurring into the lists thrice-armed because he has his quarrel just."

Gina Pinnera, an American dramatic soprano, declared by Col. Church to have "one of the greatest voices ever produced in America," sang three numbers—two Verdi arias and Brunnehilde's Battle Cry from Wagner's "Die Walkure." Guiseppe Bamboschek was the accompanist. The Rev. Dr. Albert Edward Day of the Christ Methodist Episcopal Church pronounced the invocation. A. K. Oliver, secretary of the board of the institute, read his annual report.

PRAISES PITTSBURGH

Marc Peter, minister from Switzerland to the United States, was asked by Col. Church to say a few words, although he was not on the program. "All of you have been to Washington," he said, "but not everyone in Washington has visited Pittsburgh. They should. It would be worth while if they saw only this beautiful institute."

Madame Peter and Paul Block, publisher of the Post-Gazette, were introduced. Mr. Oliver read letters of regret from Lady Nancy Astor and Robert Silvercruys, charge d'affairs of the Belgian embassy, who wrote in behalf of the ambassador, Prince de Ligne. Lady Astor's letter was brief. "Alas and alack, I am sailing on the 24th, so can't get to Pittsburgh. If you will give me a chance in two years time, I will come back and take it. I am truly sorry," she wrote.

The guests at the dinner last night, in addition to Secretary Mellon were:

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Harden Church, Mr. and Madame Marc Peter, Senator David A. Reed, Mr. and Mrs. Marcus Aaron, Mr. and Mrs. Robert J. Alderdice, Mrs. Taylor Alderdice, W. S. Arbuthnot, Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Blackburn, Judge and Mrs. Josiah Cohen, Mr. and Mrs. George W. Crawford, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Garland, Mr. and Mrs. James D. Hailman, Roy A. Hunt, Mayor and Mrs. Charles H. Kline, Frank J. Lanahan, P. J. McArdle, Miss McArdle, Judge and Mrs. James R. Macfarlane, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Beatty Mellon, Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Moorhead, A. Bryan Wall, Miss Wall, Dr. Andrew Avinoff, Mr. and Mrs. Roy B. Ambrose, Dr. Thomas Stockham Baker, Dr. and Mrs. Charles Heinroth, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Munn, Homer Saint-Gaudens, George F. Sheers, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Cunningham, Dr. and Mrs. W. J. Holland, Guillaume Lerolle, Mrs. William N. Frew, Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Mellon, Frank Nicola, Mrs. Henry R. Rea, J. C. Hobbs, Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Milholland, Paul Block, Mr. and Mrs. Harry A. Estep, Dr. John G. Bowman, Mr. and Mrs. T. P. Gayford, James R. Mellon, Miss Gina Pinnera, Madame L. Shoumatoff, Guiseppe Bamboschek, R. R. Church, Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Keller, Mrs. W. Terrell Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Leovy, A. W. Robertson, Frank C. Harper, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur E. Braun, Mr. and Mrs. H. C. McEldowney, Mr. and Mrs. E. T. Whiter, Mrs. E. V. Babcock, Mrs. James Francis Burke, H. B. Rust, Richard K. Mellon, Mr. and Mrs. J. Frederic Byers.

RAPS UGLINESS

While Secretary Mellon described the plans for a program of improvements designed to make Washington one of the most beautiful cities in the world, he did not mince words in pointing out some present defects. Pennsylvania avenue, he said, is distinguished among the important streets of the world for "sheer ugliness and lack of architectural dignity."

MERCER PROTHONOTARY CANDIDATE DIES AT 72

SHARPSVILLE, Pa., Oct. 19.—Charles Stewart, 72, Republican candidate for prothonotary of Mercer county last year, died following a long illness.

FORNEY NOT TO TALK

stances would permission be granted to interview Forney.

Meyer has recommended that the racketeer be pardoned, notwithstanding that he has served only about two months of his sentence and that he pleaded guilty to three indictments. Meyer would not say why he thinks Forney should be released; but he denied that he had made any promise of clemency as an inducement to the vice magnate to plead guilty.

"I refuse to disclose," he said, "what has passed between Forney and me! I refuse to disclose why I have recommended a pardon. I refuse for the same reason that the State Department sometimes refuses to give information requested by Congress—because it is against public policy."

GARDNER DENIED

District Attorney Samuel H. Gardner was asked why Forney had not been called before the special grand jury now investigating the very matters on which the racketeer is well informed.

"I have been unable to see Forney personally," said Gardner, "because he is a Federal prisoner in the county jail. Hiram D. Hirsh is registered as his attorney. I have had several conferences with Hirsh, but he declines to let Forney testify. Nevertheless I still have hope that we will have him before the grand jury before the investigation ends."

NOT THROUGH YET

"Mr. Gardner, the Federal grand jury which indicted 167 persons on June 9 last on the charge of conspiracy to violate the prohibition law, said in its presentment that in the course of its inquiry it unearthed much evidence of slot machine operation and other forms of vice which did not come under the jurisdiction of the United States courts. It suggested that you give your attention to this evidence. Why did you postpone doing so until now?"

"Don't imagine," the District Attorney answered, "that because there was no special grand jury investigation in the meanwhile we had been neglecting the matter. The courts were very busy. But we had been making quiet inquiries. Furthermore, we are not through with the slot machine matter yet."

Hiram D. Hirsh, attorney for Forney, is a local secretary of the Public Service Commission. His office is in the City-County Building, but efforts to find him there were unsuccessful.

Gardner was asked why the county detectives, supposedly well informed in regard to the existence of commercial vice, had not been called before the grand jury.

"Their information," he said, "is based on hearsay. They are accordingly being employed to bring witnesses who can give first hand information."

"With few exceptions the witnesses so far called have been obscure persons. Why have not the higher public officials that presumably know what has been going on been called?

NO IMMUNITY

"We have to lay the ground work for questioning them through the testimony of these other witnesses. If we should bring in one of the men 'higher up' and ask him what he knew about grafting, he might disclaim all knowledge of it. And then, where would we be? But if we can ask him concerning specific definite matters that we have learned about from the preceding witness, it will not be so easy for him to evade answering."

"Do witnesses called before the grand jury win immunity from prosecution if they testify?"

"No, they do not. I understand that they do in the United States Court, but that is not the rule in our court. We do not, however, use against a defendant statements that he may have made in testifying before the grand jury."

"Mr. Gardner, is it not a fact that many crimes connected with commercialized vice never reach the courts because city magistrates and aldermen unlawfully assume jurisdiction over them, virtually usurping the power of the courts?"

MAGISTRATES' COURSE

"Yes, there is a great deal of that.

"There are some suspicious inferences that might be drawn from from the magistrates' course," Gardner admitted, "but whether or not these inferences can be proved is another matter. We are trying to find out what is behind it."

LaFollette in 1924 polled 5,538 votes in the Pennsylvania precincts thus far reported. He also polled heavy votes in Minnesota and Wisconsin.

RANKS ABOVE COOLIDGE'S '24 VOTE, STRAWS INDICATE

Two more Pennsylvania counties, Somerset and McKean, are prepared to give decisive majorities to Herbert Hoover over Gov. Alfred E. Smith, according to complete returns in the straw vote canvass of the state by The Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

Like other counties which have filled their quotas of straw votes, these counties contribute a very small proportion of the total vote in the state. They are part of the rural bloc, large in the aggregate, but are not comparable to the large counties which are decisive factors in elections.

Somerset county, on the southern border in the west, is apparently more strongly Republican. Hoover captures 79 per cent of the straw vote, compared to 72 per cent of the total vote obtained by President Coolidge in 1924. The straw totals are: Hoover 952, 910 men and 42 women; Smith 351, 338 men and 13 women. Smith scores heavily in party shifts, winning 168 Coolidge voters, while Hoover wins 54 Davis voters. The LaFollette vote goes 65 for Smith and 16 for Hoover.

McKean County, on the northern tier, gives Hoover 72 per cent of its straw vote and gave Coolidge 70 per cent of its total in 1924. The straw totals are: Hoover 424, 368 men and 56 women; Smith 164, 144 men and 20 women. Smith wins 107 Coolidge voters compared to 17 Davis voters in the Hoover column. The LaFollette vote goes 13 to Smith and 9 to Hoover.

The present standing in the Pennsylvania canvass, conducted in connection with the nation-wide poll by the Hearst papers, is as follows: Hoover 58,673, 47,496 men and 11,177 women; Smith 33,533, 25,971 men and 7,562 women.

This vote in 1924 was divided as follows: Coolidge 63,705, 51,390 men and 12,315 women; Davis 10,022, 8,471 men and 1,551 women; LaFollette 5,538; not voting 12,941.

INT. ART SHOW FIRST PRIZE GOES TO FRENCHMAN

"STILLS" TAKE TWO HIGHEST AWARDS

As usual in the international exhibitions of paintings at the Carnegie Institute, first prize at the twenty-seventh show, which was thrown open to the public yesterday after the Founder's Day exercises, has been awarded for a picture which would have received scant attention if laymen had been the judges. The same may be said of the second canvass.

The prize-winning pictures and those given honorable mention are free from the distorted drawing, exaggerated coloration and other grotesque features that marked the canvases receiving the principal awards last year.

First prize of $1,500 has been awarded to Andre Derain, a Frenchman living in Paris, for a rather dull, uninteresting "Still Life" of a dead heron, a dead pheasant and a shotgun. Derain is 48 years old and is classed as a Modernist.

Nothing has been given out by the judges to explain why they awarded first prize to the Derain painting, but a statement issued by the Carnegie Institute says the picture demonstrates a grave and noble conception.

Colin Gill of England and Anto Carte of Belgium, members of the jury of award, gave the impression in an interview several weeks ago that they preferred "exciting" pictures to merely beautiful ones; but Derain's "Still Life" can hardly be regarded as either very exciting or very beautiful. Hence it is supposed that it was given the premier award because of some quality of technique that only artists can appreciate.

Second prize of $1,000 has been given to Pedro Pruna, 34, a Spaniard living in Paris, one of the youngest artists ever to win an important award at the Carnegie Institute. His painting is also a "Still Life"—a bowl of flowers and spruce fronds, with a plaster cast of a head on the table beside it. He has three pictures in the show.

Third prize of $500 has been won by an American artist, Glen O. Coleman, 41, of Long Beach, N. Y., with a picture called "Greenwich Village." It is a winter scene in New York City with a poetic quality to it that will bring "fond recollections' to persons familiar with the big city.

The four pictures "honorably mentioned" are attractive canvases, and three are the work of women. First honorable mention goes to Mrs. Dod Proctor, wife of the English artist, Ernest Proctor, for her charming "Portrait of a Girl." Mrs. Proctor won honorable mention at the twenty-fifth Carnegie International in 1926 with her painting, "The Back Bedroom."

Marie Laurencin, a Parisienne, has been awarded honorable mention for a fantastic picture of sylphs; Georgina Klitgaard, an American woman, of Bearsville, N. Y., for an interesting landscape called "Truck Garden," and Albert Saverys, a Belgian, for a poignant and melancholy picture of "Winter in Flanders."

Henry Lebasque, a Frenchman, has won the $300 prize offered by the Garden Club of Allegheny County for a painting of flowers. Lebasque, 62, was awarded third prize in the twenty-first International in 1922.

In accordance with the plan adopted last year, about one-third of the number of artists usually invited were asked to send paintings for the exhibition, but each was requested to send from three to five canvases.

There are 381 paintings in the show, the work of 116 artists. Of the pictures are from 14 European countries and 128 from the United States. Of the artists 62 are Europeans and 54 Americans.

Classified as to nationality of the artists the paintings are divided as follows: United States, 128; Great Britian, 51; France, 50; Italy, 26; Spain, 21; Germany, 20; Russia, 13; Poland, 13, Czechoslovakia, 10; Norway, 10; Belgium, 10; Austria, 8; Holland, 8; Switzerland, 8, and Sweden, 5.

The paintings are hung by nations and the works of each artist grouped.

There is a memorial group of five paintings by Charles Sims, a well-known English artist who died this year.

The prizes were awarded by a jury of four artists, presided over by Homer Saint-Gaudens, director of fine arts at Carnegie Institute. The jury of award met in Pittsburgh on September 18. The members were Messrs. Gill and Carte, and Rockwell Kent and Ernest Lawson, the last two being Americans.

A statement issued by the Carnegie Institute in regard to the twenty-seventh International Exhibition, says:

"The Carnegie International was begun in 1896, and each year since that time, with the exception of the five years of the Great War, an exhibition has been held. It is the only one of its kind on the American Continent and, in fact, the only annual international exhibition in the world, since the Venetian International is held only every two years. During the last 32 years the Pittsburgh Salon has introduced many of the leading figures of European art in America.

"The International sets forth all aspects of present-day art. It offers to the public a full and fairly accurate report of what is going on in art circles in modern Western civilization. A particular effort was made to secure the most important paintings recently finished by the artists. All the painters who were invited to send to the exhibition are are representatives of recognized groups in their own lands."

THIEVES STEAL FIFTH OF FARMER'S PRODUCE

CHARLEROI, Pa., Oct. 19.—Farmers and fruit growers in Fallowfield and Carroll townships, Washington county, report losses of approximately 20 per cent of their orchard and planted crops this year, owing to unprecedented thievery by gangs of men and boys during the summer.

Mellon Leaves, Silent on Smith, Politics

Secretary of the Treasury A. W. Mellon left Pittsburgh for Washington last night without making any statement concerning the charge of Gov. Alfred E. Smith that he had "ducked the issue" in his Wednesday's statement on the question of a reduction in the operating costs of the federal government.

"I will not discuss this at all until I have read Gov. Smith's latest statement in full," said Mr. Mellon. "If I should have anything to say, I will wait until I return to Washington."

Secretary Mellon said he had come here solely to attend the Founder's Day exercises at Carnegie Institute and did not care to discuss politics in any way. Members of his party, however, denied a report issued at the Republican headquarters here that the secretary would address a political meeting in Pittsburgh on November 1.

Teolis picked the boy up and took him to the Braddock General Hospital, where it was found he was suffering from a fractured cheek bone. According to the police the accident was unavoidable as the boy ran against the machine. No arrests were made.

Overnight, the Wheat King has been welcomed in thousands of homes ... welcomed for its extra goodness, its extra slices that never go begging.

Hundreds of mothers tell us their children are eating more bread than ever before ... the Wheat King has a rich goodness that children can't resist.

One woman says they made most of a meal on bread the first night the Wheat King was served. Slices are so fluffy-fresh, so white and fine of texture, so tasteful, they disappear like tarts.

Have you enjoyed the Wheat King ... the finest loaf in 40 years?

If you haven't ... call your grocer ... ask for Wheat King ... do it now.

ESCAPING GAS FUMES FELL SCORE

ALTOONA, Pa., Oct. 1.—When a drum of chlorine gas escaped as the car was being moved in the East Altoona roundhouse of the Pennsylvania Railroad early today, a score of transportation employes, waiting to take out trains, were overcome.

Doctors and nurses were called out in the emergency with gas masks obtained from Pittsburgh so workers could enter the building.

Four were admitted to the Altoona Hospital, L. J. Stratton, foreman; Leo J. Eger, conductor; Charles P. Johnston, brakeman, and Malcolm McAlarney, car inspector, being the most seriously affected.

Railroad officials are investigating.

PRODUCE PURE MANGANESE BY DEVICE CREATED HERE

Another metal has been added to the resources of industry by the Bureau of Metal Research of the Carnegie Institute of Technology it was announced at a joint meeting with the United States Bureau of Mines.

An electric furnace which produces pure manganese in commercial quantities has been perfected for the first time.

The discovery was made by Dr. F. M. Walters, Jr., Dr. V. N. Krivolok and Dr. J. B. Friauf.

Manganese exists in all steels. It has the properties of toughening and making ductile alloys in which it is found.

The crude manganese is distilled by placing it in a crucible made of pure magnesia and covered by another crucible placed upside down on the first to collect the distilled metal.

The crucibles are placed inside a fused quartz tube four inches in diameter and two feet long, closed at both ends. The air is pumped out of the tube. Around the tube is a water cooled copper coil through which a 7,700-volt alternating current is passed. Inductive currents set up by the coil melts the manganese. The outside of the coil is almost cold but inside, only two inches away, the manganese is at a blinding heat.

The pure manganese has a silver luster, and is hard enough to scratch glass. The form in which the public knows manganese best is in the clouds of reddish smoke from steel mills. The substance is lost by combining with air during steel making.

NEGRO FOUND GUILTY OF SLAYING WOMAN

George Casey, 37, Negro, of 49 Fullerton avenue, charged with fatally wounding Mrs. Mamie Farmer, on March 21, was found guilty of voluntary manslaughter yesterday. The jury, which was out six and one-half hours, recommended mercy. The case, which opened Monday, was heard by Visiting Judge J. Frank Graff of Westmoreland county.

FALLS DEAD IN STATION

Morgue attaches are seeking the identity of a man about 70, who fell dead in the Fort Wayne depot, Federal street, North Side, late last night. The name Kurtz appears on his collar and a watch found in his pocket is engraved with the initials "C. K." An unopened letter mailed from Kansas City and addressed to Charles Bates, 108 Stockton avenue, also was found in his effects.

MRS. MEYER RACUSIN SUMMONED BY DEATH

Mrs. Gertrude Steinsapir Racusin, 31, wife of Meyer Racusin, of Rimersburg, Pa., died yesterday in West Penn Hospital. She was the daughter of Mr. and rMs. Julius Steinsapir, of Hobart street, and had spent virtually all of her life in Pittsburgh. She was a graduate of the Fifth Avenue High School. She leaves her mother, her husband, five children, three brothers and a sister.

News From Film Capital Combined With Local Amusement Notes

FILM STARRING H. RICHMOND TO BE MADE IN NEW YORK, LOCATION OF STORY

By REGINA CREWE.

(Copyright, 1928, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 19.

ONLY in the picture industry does the mountain move to Mohammed. Harry Richman, one of Gotham's jazz kings, is the latest to cause Hollywood to move to Manhattan. Within the next week, Director Alan Crosland, C. Gardner Sullivan and John Considine, of United Artists, will embark for Broadway, where Richman's first movie, "Tin Pan Alley," will be filmed on original locations.

"Tin Pan Alley" is the descriptive title of a dingy little street stretching from Broadway to Sixth avenue in New York's famous Forties. But it is there that the songs of the nation are written. The picture will be made at the great Cosmopolitan studios, and they are saying that perhaps Lupe Velez will be the lucky girl to sound her "A" as Richman's leading woman in the talking photodrama.

Love doesn't seem as popular as it used to be. At any rate, the title of D. W. Griffith's picture, "The Love Song," is to be changed. And the best name that has been suggested so far is "Masquerade." For a time they considered "Passion Song," but the entire story centers about a sentimental ditty composed by Irving Berlin, and that title doesn't fit Irving's song. So the title will have to be fitted to the theme number, or else the singing sequences will have to be retaken. Which isn't being done.

Speaking of "D. W.", reminds me that Samuel Goldwyn is negotiating with Mr. Griffith to direct Ronald Colman's next picture, which is thus far known as "Condemned," and deals with the terrors of the French penal colony, "Devil's Island."

Not every stage played is suited for motion pictures. Mary Pickford, still seeking a cast for "Coquette," had tests taken of the entire New York company with a view to using them in her picture. But when the tests were hurried to Hollywood and shown here, nary a single bit of potential movie material was selected. The stage won't usurp the sceptre of the celluloid drama after all. At least not in this instance.

Harold Lloyd has removed the cast in which his injured arm has been encased for 10 days, and is busily working on his new photoplay. Harold chipped a piece of bone from his left arm while playing handball, and has had a not too pleasant time waiting its mending. No leading woman yet, by the way.

It looks as though Estelle Taylor were stealing some of the prerogatives of her husband, Jack Dempsey, for the title of Estelle's first all-talking picture is "The Pusher in the Face." It is a two-reeler with the stage stars, Carol McComas and Lester Allen, as Estelle's assistant pushers-in-the-face. No news as to whose face it may be.

Paramount is all set to shoot oodles of audibles at its Long Island studios. Under the supervision of Monta Bell, production will proceed a mile a minute! Surely New York is back on the movie map with a big bang! The first Paramount all-talkie will be "The Letter," which establishes the precedent of having none but stage-trained actors in its cast. It will be directed by Jean De Limur, with Jeanne Eagles, Herbert Marshall, O. P. Heggie and Reginald Owen as the principal players.

Following this the Four Marx Brothers will appear in a singing screen translation of their show, "The Cocoanuts." Then will come "The Birth of the Blues" and "Gentlement of the Press." In every case stage players—and only stage players—will be used. So the Hollywood boys and girls are cheated out of New York trips.

Everyone here expected that the wonderful performance of Lewis Stone in "The Patriot" would lead to more triumphs, but who could guess that Lewis would be selected as next leading man to Greta Garbo. That is just what has happened. The present name of the film is "Heat," and, as you might guess, part of the action is in the tropics. By the way, if you haven't seen "The Patriot," do so. It is adult entertainment, distinguished by many instances of fine acting. Emil Jannings proves himself a good sport by daring to permit such a trouper as Stone so many chances to "steal the picture."

Louis John Bartel has been signed to play the role of the butler in "The Canary Murder Case," and when he completes this part it wouldn't be surprising to see him cast in "The Five O'Clock Girl" as one of Marion Davies' supporting players. Louis made a hit in the stage play, and, as the screen version is to be audible, he would be right in his element.

HISTORY HAS ROMANCE

Victor Varconi, as Lord Nelson, and Corinne Griffith, as Lady Hamilton, in a scene from the historical picture, "The Divine Lady," First National production based on the romance between the lord and lady mentioned.

PLAY'S DEBUT SCHEDULED

A "first-night" performance of a play is going to occur in the Nixon Monday night, when the marine-aviation drama, "Davy Jones' Locker," will be presented before an audience for the first time. From Pittsburgh the play goes direct to the new Erlanger Theater in Chicago for an indefinite run, and after that New York will see it, according to present plans.

"Headin' South," in which McIntyre and Heath, famous old-timers, come to the Alvin next week, is admitted to be a near relative of "The Hani Tree," in which the comedians appeared for several seasons. Nearly 100 are in the company. There will be matinees Wednesday and Saturday.

Next week, in the Pitt, Pauline Frederick will appear in person in a new comedy, "The Imperfect Lady," which spent all last season in three cities, San Francisco, Los Angeles and Detroit. In each of these cities, it is said, Miss Frederick and her company arrived for a brief engagement and were forced to remain several months. Matinees will be given Thursday and Saturday.

Irene Ricardo and Johnny Hines are to be featured on the Davis stage and screen, respectively, next week. Miss Ricardo is a singing comedienne. The Hines picture will be "The Wright Idea."

The conference opened yesterday and sessions were held during both the morning and afternoon. There will be sessions held throughout all of today and the conference will close tomorrow noon.

Representatives of 75 department stores throughout the country were present yesterday when Dr. Greene outlined the purpose of the conference, which is being devoted entirely to methods of analysis.

Paul Block, newspaper publisher, delivered the principal address, speaking at a luncheon in the Faculty Club. He emphasized the effects of politeness on buyers and urged the delegates to impress their sales forces with the possibilities of politeness.

Other speakers were Miss Grace Darling Ely, member of the bureau staff, and Dr. David R. Craig, the bureau's executive secretary.

HELP KIDNEYS BY DRINKING MORE WATER

Kidney and bladder irritations often result from acidity, says a noted authority. The kidneys help filter this acid from the blood and pass it on to the bladder, where it may remain to irritate and inflame, causing a burning, scalding sensation, or setting up an irritation at the neck of the bladder, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night. The sufferer is in constant dread; the water passes sometimes with a scalding sensation and is very profuse; again, there is difficulty in voiding it.

Bladder weakness, most folks call it because they can't control urination. While it is extremely annoying and sometimes very painful, this is often one of the most simple ailments to overcome. Begin drinking lots of soft water, also get about four ounces of Jad Salts from your pharmacist and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast. Continue this for two or three days. This will help neutralize the acids in the system so they no longer are a source of irritation to the bladder and urinary organs, which then act normal again.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is used by thousands of folks who are subject to urinary disorders caused by acid irritation. Jad Salts causes no bad effects whatever.

Here you have a pleasant, effervescent lithia-water drink which may quickly relieve your bladder irritation.

Teachers' Meet Gives Pupils Vacation

What finer tribute could be given to Kolster dependability?

¶ Tone quality, selectivity and distinguished appearance are mere words when spoken by makers of radio. ¶ But when these virtues are so outstanding as to inspire the satisfied confidence of thousands of Kolster owners and their friends, the makers of Kolster Radio feel justified in quoting the expression, heard upon all sides, "Kolster is a fine set."

REWARDS OF WINNERS DRAW MORE INTO ZAIN AD TEST

THIRD LIST READY SUNDAY; NEW SETS OF PRIZES WAIT

The fourth period of the Zain Ad Writing contest is on, and novice ad writers, stimulated by the letters of appreciation from the many prize winners of the past three periods, are writing anew to gather in more awards.

Judges are hurrying through the ads from the third period, and in Sunday's Sun-Telegraph, the prize winners will be announced. In Monday's Sun-Telegraph will be printed a number of the prize winning ads.

Interest in the contest is growing rapidly.

One prize winner, writing to express her appreciation of her award, says in her letter:

"I have had many letters from the heads of firms that I chose in writing my first ads, and as their interest in the test equals my own, I am going to 'keep on keepin' on.' The Sun-Telegraph has set the goal; we—the public—are off and somebody will come under the wire for that wonderful $1,000 . . . and it may be me for I need the money. Many thanks."

Carrie S. Thomas also writes:

"I am writing to thank you for the beautiful pearls sent me today as a prize for an ad I wrote on Butlers.

"It was not difficult for me to write a Butler ad for I simply gave my own experience."

Mrs. H. D. Walker, in a letter expressing her thanks for her prize, says:

"The prize is well worth working for, but even without reward the fun and mental stimulation of thinking up the ads repays for taking part in the contest."

So "pick up some paper, preferably white, read through the rules and then write and write."

Probably the best ideas for ads may be found in the business places of the concerns taking part in the ad contest.

There's Sully's, Inc., a brief trade name that means auto supplies and accessories, all the many incidentals that go to make automobile owning and driving the comfortable transportation method it is today. Study thoroughly the service that Sully's gives, the stock of metal parts, electrical equipment, and all the other allied lines. Then write.

Or there's the Yellow Cab Company, known, like secret service agents more by number than by name. When you think of Yellow Cab you think of COURT 5700, and if you would write an ad that's different and full of the real practical advertising message, have your ad revolve about this mystic number—Court 5700.

Completely different in aspect is Pickering's, dealers in furniture or anything that applies to the interior of the home. In nearly every person there is that admirable streak or ambition that makes for a well furnished, charmingly-atmosphered home. Furniture contributes to well-being in the home. That means Pickering's, Tenth and Penn avenue.

And then on to Reizenstein & Sons, dealers in china and glassware, American and imported. The luster of old china and new china, all the color and fancy of creative artists await the pen of the Zain ad writer in this dazzling array of material. The store presents a study in gifts. Read through the list of concerns on this page, then write, but—

Write each ad on a separate sheet of paper, which should be at least as large as a postal card, and preferably commercial letter size. Put your name and address on the back of each sheet and also on the flap of the envelope in which you mail them. SEND THE ADS TO THE ZAIN AD-WRITING TEST, CARE OF THE PITTSBURGH SUN-TELEGRAPH, PITTSBURGH, PA.

ENGINEERS ACT ON WORKS PLAN

Discussion of the pending Senate bill, which proposes creation of a prosperity reserve and a plan to stabilize industry and employment by the expansion of public works during industrial depression, is in today's program of the administrative board of the American Engineering Council, in session here. The board meets in the William Penn Hotel today and tomorrow.

The attitude of the engineering profession toward Senator Wagner's bill providing for the establishment of a national employment system will be expressed by the board. Arthur W. Berresford of New York is to preside at the various sessions. L. P. Alford of New York, chairman of the public affairs committee of the council, will present the committee's report.

PITTSBURGHER GIVEN MANN ACT SENTENCE

WHEELING, W. Va., Oct. 19.—William G. Ridenour, 23, of Pittsburgh, indicted on a charge of impersonating a Federal officer and with violation of the Mann act, was sentenced to serve five years at Atlanta, in Federal Court here yesterday. He was charged with transporting Alma Henderson, a Wheeling girl, to Washington, Pa., for immoral purposes.

Sign YOUR name and address plainly on BACK of each sheet. Also on the flap of the envelope. SEND TO THE ZAIN AD-WRITING TEST, CARE OF THE PITTSBURGH SUN-TELEGRAPH, PITTSBURGH, PA.

Wilkinsburg Will Protest One-Man Trolley Cars

NORTH SIDE DEDICATES SPAN TONIGHT

One of the biggest community celebrations to be held in North Side in years will take place tonight when Sixth Street Bridge is formally opened to traffic and dedicated. The Seventh and Ninth Street bridges, although completed and open to traffic for some time, will be officially dedicated at the same time as the sister span.

Preceding the dedicatory ceremony, a parade with five divisions in line will traverse the principal streets of the North Side. The parade, heralded as the largest to be held since the Armistice Day parade, will form in Montgomery avenue. It will travel over Federal street to Liberty avenue to Seventh street, to East Ohio street, to Chestnut street, to Lockhart street, to Madison avenue, where the review will be held.

CITY OFFICIALS TO AID

City officials headed by Mayor Charles H. Kline and county officials led by Joseph G. Armstrong, chairman of the board of County Commissioners, civic and military organizations of the North Side and other parts of the city and fraternal and patriotic associations will participate in the celebration. Maj. Harry D. Fowler, will be chief marshal. His aides will be D. M. Wilson, adjutant and Attorney Ralph H. Smith, chief of staff. Scores of decorated floats will lend color to the affair.

To Peggy Jane Ewer, 9, great-great granddaughter of James Hamilton, a pioneer resident of the North Side, will be given the honor of cutting the ribbon opening the span to traffic. Following the dedicatory ceremony, a banquet will be held in H. J. Heinz auditorium. Mayor Kline, County Commissioners, members of City Council and prominent business men of the North Side will speak. Attorney Charles P. Lang is general chairman of the bridge opening committee.

COST $1,465,000

The new span is 1,145 feet long, with a 38-foot roadway and two 10-foot sidewalks. It is a self-anchored suspension type bridge and cost $1,465,000.

The following will be in charge of the divisions: Military, Charles G. Lane, Jr., and Oscar I. Harter; civic, P. S. Freyvogel and Adolph Mayer, Jr.; educational, Clifford B. Connolly and W. H. Smith; fraternal and patriotic, Dr. D. S. Ashcom and Florence J. Schroeder; motor, Clarence C. Young and John G. Mock.

BLAME PRANK FOR CRASH

Halloween prank is blamed for an auto collision at Walnut street and South Highland avenue.

Boys are believed to have removed the top of a flashing beacon light at that point, leaving a dangerous intersection without a warning sign, Patrolman John Flannigan reported. As a result a car driven by Morris H. Fivars, 5711 Northumberland street, crashed with a machine driven by W. H. Bailey, 1240 Love street, Swissvale. Both automobiles were slightly damaged, but no one was injured.

No trace of a broken beacon light has been found and police believe it was lifted from its place in pre-Halloween activities.

MURRAY AVENUE MAN CONVICTED AS FORGER

Convicted of six charges of forgery and false pretense for copying notes which he had received from persons to whom he had sold furnaces on the installment plan, and then selling the copies to a second finance corporation, R. E. Brandt, 4371 Murray avenue, was remanded to jail in default of $1,500 bail in Criminal Court yesterday. He will be sentenced Monday unless he files a motion for a new trial.

Dormont Shifts Odium to Pittsburgh

Dormont was shocked over its dinner table when it read about two white girls being found in the house of a Chinaman within the borough confines.

Then, recovering from the shock, it discovered that the house in question wasn't in Dormont at all. Naturally the borough fathers became a little indignant.

The house, that of Yee Haim, Hip Song chief, is located at 2531 West Liberty avenue. And that isn't in Dormont at all, but in Pittsburgh, Borough Manager E. O. Garrett states. "The borough doesn't begin for a block or so further out," he said.

Police raided the place, expecting to find imported Chinese gunmen and tong war firearms. Instead, they found the two white girls.

North Side police today are seeking the driver who ran away and left his two injured passengers after his car skidded into a trolley on Manchester Bridge. Mrs. Martha Kenny, 42, and her daughter, 21, 922 Western avenue, were hurt. They gave the name of their companion, but were unable to explain why he left the accident scene.

Beaver Ave. Store Fire Probed

A fire on the North Side early this morning, which resulted in three persons being overcome, is being investigated by city detectives and Fire Marshal Thomas Pfarr. The blaze, which originated in the clothing store of Sol Klutcher, 1829 Beaver avenue, North Side, caused $5,000 damage, and for a time threatened to destroy other buildings.

Mrs. C. J. Burg, who resided on the second floor of the address was overcome and carried to the street by Fire Captain Robert Martin, of No. 47 Engine Company. Capt. Bernard Hawthorne and Fireman Theodore Rebley, also of No. 47 Engine Company, were overcome while in the basement. They were rescued by other firemen.

According to District Fire Chief Daniel Jones, he summoned detectives and notified the fire marshal after he had found evidence which pointed, he said, toward incendiary origin. The doorways and cellarways were blocked with rubbish, he said.

INJURED IN CRASH, LAWYER BRINGS SUIT

Weisbrod, 6330 Stanton avenue, has been made defendant in a damage suit brought against him by Alexander Law of Benn & Law, because of injuries sustained when Weisbrod's car and the one in which Law was riding collided at Troy Hill road and East Ohio street, August 15, last. Law was badly bruised and cut about the body. His counsel is Martin J. Mihm.

2 EAST END CLUBS RAIDED BY FEDERALS

Two clubs and a restaurant in East End yielded prohibition agents large quantities of whisky, ale and gin in raids conducted yesterday. Six men were arrested and released on bond, the agents said.

Breaking in the doors of a club on the second floor of 5714 Penn avenue, the enforcement officers found 15 men drinking about the bar. Ale and "good" whisky was reported found. The arrests of Autillo Coletta, 27, Ubaldo Coletta, 36, of 623 Collins avenue and Louis Nevins, 41, of 330 Ella street, were reported.

Indicating that they did not believe in signs, the agents yesterday ignored the legend "Funeral Home" on a building at 6215 Broad street. Club quarters on the first floor housed large quantities of home brew and whisky with Carmen Accetta, 35, in charge, the raiders averred. Accetta was arrested.

A barroom at 134 South Beatty street, was filled with ale, gin, whisky and beer valued at $900, the agents said. Arthur L. Wainwright and Fred Drumm were reported arrested.

BLACKED EYES, ASKS DIVORCE

Her husband forced her to take pills, later blackened her eyes and then he and his mother put the wife out of the house as well as the latter's mother with the result that Mrs. Agnes McIntosh Laquatra, 2716 Kirk avenue, Carrick, landed in divorce court.

She wants a divorce fromm Samuel J. Laquatra, a barber, who told his wife he was sorry he had not married some one of his own nationality. Mrs. Laquatra is a sales woman in a music store. However, the last straw came in her life when the husband, she testified, boasted he had other women. The couple were married in Wellsburg, W. Va., January of last year and for the first two weeks things went all right in Federal street, where they went to live with Laquatra's people. Then fault finding began and their was one fuss after another finally culminating in a separation. Mrs. Laquatra charges cruel and barborous treatment through her counsel, Albert Martin.

CUTTING OF SERVICE TO BE OPPOSED

If the one-man trolley service planned for Wilkinsburg will reduce the service now afforded residents of that borough, the plan will find opposition in the members of Council, several members of that body indicated today. Council meets Monday night, at which time Burgess Jesse R. Langley expects some member to ask for a special meeting to discuss the plan of the railways company.

While no official announcement in the change of service has yet been made to the company, notices posted at the Homewood car barns indicate that the East Liberty Express cars will replace the Frankstown avenue line into the borough and the cars on this route will be the one-man type, except during the rush hour. The change is expected to be made November 1. It is planned to have the Frankstown avenue route end at the Tioga street loop.

Burgess Langley stated that he would oppose any change that would reduce the service that Wilkinsburg is entitled to. He refused to comment on the one-man car proposition, saying that it was too big a question for one man to decide without having other members of council and the citizens as well express their ideas.

Councilman Thomas H. Moore said that he believed the citizens should be called together at a mass meeting to voice their opinions of the proposed change. He said he was not in favor of council acting without first hearing from the people. John H. Rhodes, president of council, said that on Monday night at the regular meeting of council, he would ask that a special meeting be called.

Council maintains a standing committee on special railway transportation of which William M. Turner is chairman. The other members of this committee are J. Clark Stewart and Fred L. Graf. If any demand for a special meeting, at which the public will be invited to attend, is called, it is believed the call will be made by this committee.

Hurled 30 Feet By Blast

One man was blown 30 feet and another was badly burned in an explosion of fumes at the Dillon gasoline service station, Frankstown avenue and Bennett street this morning.

A. A. Dillon, 48, of 6953 Rosewood street, proprietor, was hurled through a door and landed against a gasoline pump outside by the force of the blast. Herbert Krebs, 18, of 7053 Arnold street, in the basement, where the explosion originated, was badly burned on face, hands and arms. Both were treated at the Pittsburgh Hospital, and Krebs was declared to be in a serious condition from shock.

The explosion is thought to have occurred from a spark in starting a motor, igniting fumes. A portion of the brick wall of the office building was moved 10 inches. Pieces of the shattered door were found 80 feet away. There was no fire.

CAUGHT IN CAR DOOR, SUES

Alleging that the motorman of a car carelessly and without warning closed the door on him, injuring his side, back and otherwise hurting him, Charles W. Dittmer, 608 Arch street, has brought suit against the Pittsburgh Railways Company through his counsel Ben Paul Brasley for $25,000 damages. Dittmer says he boarded a car at Sandusky and East Ohio street August 14 and that the motorman did not give him a chance to get safely on.

BRENTWOOD CLUB PLANS BAKE SALE

The Brentwood Civic Club will hold a bake sale tomorrow at 2711 Brownsville road for the benefit of the philanthropic fund. Mrs. H. Hellan, chairman, will be assisted by Mrs. F. C. Gardner and Mrs. Barbara Suttner.

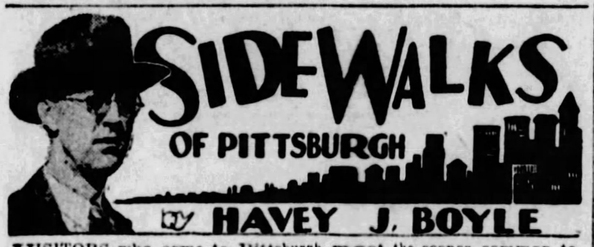
MUM PARADE AT CRAFTON

Crafton's annual Hallowe'en celebration, under the auspices of the Business Men's Association, will be held next Wednesday, October 31. Mummers will meet in Emerson avenue, and under the escort of the borough firemen will will parade to Ridge avenue, to Noble avenue, to Bradford avenue, to Station street, to Crafton avenue. The judges' stand and bandstand will be in front of the First Presbyterian Church. A long list of prizes will be awarded to the participants.

MAN COLLAPSES, GUN FOUND IN CLOTHES

An automatic revolver and a box of cartridges found in the possession of James Ruffa, 40, of Coraopolis, resulted in Ruffa being lodged in the South Side Police Station last night on a suspicious person charge while detectives investigate his movements. Ruffa fell on the sidewalk in front of the Pittsburgh and Lake Erie depot, Smithfield street, and was treated at the South Side Hospital for slight bruises. The revolver was found at the hospital.

SIDEWALKS OF PITTSBURGH



By HAVEY J. BOYLE

VISITORS who come to Pittsburgh meet the scenes common to every American city—in the downtown section. It is when they witness the heart and soul of the town, as they call it, that they get a real idea of Pittsburgh's unique place in the general scheme.

The other night an actress in one of the local theaters, desiring to see the real Pittsburgh, was driven to a mill district where, from a point of vantage, she saw thrown against the sky the reflection of the furnaces' glare. Across a road she saw sturdy men moving with familiarity around small infernoes. That gigantic scene of Pittsburgh's industry, the actress declared, was the finest thing she had ever seen. She saw something, she said, that authors could not quite get between book-covers, playwrights in three or four acts, nor artists on canvass. It would be her idea of pastime, she said, if a Pittsburgher, to study and meditate in the blackness of night, as our open hearths, Bessemer plants and the rolling mills roared their song of mighty power.

THE actress wondered why Pittsburghers didn't form lines around the mill sections to marvel and wonder at the strange, fanciful pictures thrown up by the flame of industry.

The actress should have been shown the interesting scene around any big mill gate when the "turns" switch, that is when the night turn is relieving the day turn.

THE night turn men are always prompt, it seems, for they sit around, their dinner buckets on the pavement close to them, while they smoke and speak in somber tones to comrades. There are gray-haired veterans, whose sons are in the mill, too, and other younger men. Some of them start moving in a little ahead of time, walking leisurely. Then comes the signal for the day turn men to make their happy exodus. The contrast between the lively gait of the men who are leaving and the almost measured tread of the men going in is interesting.

The actress likely would not understand that we who have had our front stoops only a square or so from the furnaces get a bigger kick out of the stage than out of the mills.

There was, for instance, the evening at "Arms and the Man," wherein Mr. Shaw has fun with the heroics of war.

THEN there was Mr. Marsh, our favorite orchestra conductor, because his programs include music from "The Merry Widow," "The Chocolate Soldier," when he is not regaling us with Victor Herbert and other favorites.

It would amuse Mr. Shaw, perhaps, as it seems to be in line with his humor, that the mill people of Pittsburgh rarely look at the blast furnaces, while they see romance on the stage, and that stage people see glamour in the mills and deem the stage a prosaic business of being manikins on behalf of a dramatist's brain children.

Will Rogers Says

NEW YORK, N. Y., Oct. 19.

The Literary Digest is taking a poll to see how many people there are in the United States who are interested in politics who can write their name.

Up to now there has been about a third more Republicans that can write than Democrats.

Course, when election day comes and all you have to do is make your mark, why I think the Democratic total will pick up.

Republicans have to learn to write on account of signing checks but Democrats never have to be bothered with that.

Yours, WILL ROGERS.

STOLEN LOVE by HAZEL LIVINGSTON

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Joan Hastings, seventeen and beautiful, living with two old maiden aunts in a house long run to seed, hears the tragic story of her unmarried mother's love affair and death from Aunt Evvie, who warns her not to follow in her footsteps. Joan, lonely and impressionable, falls in love with Bill Martin, whose social status is far beneath her own. The aunts plan to send her away to school, and she and Bill, terrified at the thought of parting, let their emotions get the upper hand. Bill is arrested, the victim of a bootlegging gang, and Joan, frantically asking for money to bail him out, confesses to her aunts her relations with him. Horrified, they put her on a train, bound for school, in charge of a woman friend. They denounce Bill and persuade him never to see her again. Joan slips off the train, and Walter Dunne, a kindly motorist, gives her a ride back over the two hundred miles. She arrives at Bill's home a little while after he has kissed his mother goodby, leaving no address. Through Dunne, she goes to live with Maisie Kimmer and gets a job in a department store. She writes Bill, but receives no answer. Her aunts hear that she has never reached the school, and Evvie telegraphs the woman to whom she entrusted her that Joan took a later train, after being left behind by accident at a way station. Having assured herself that this lie is admissible, Evvie washes her hands of her niece. Meanwhile Bill, on his way, picks up Rollo Keyes, a rich lad befuddled with drink, gets his car to working for him and drives him to his home. Rollo's dad offers Bill a job surveying in the oil fields. Maisie advises Joan to write to Bill's mother.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

"HEAVENS, Ma," she said at last, without a trace of the foreign accent Joan had found so puzzling in Maisie's daughter. "Do you realize how that girl would look in my French jeune fille things? Sell! Listen, girlie, Ma said you were in McBride's—you tell them you're working for the Maison Francine—"

"There—I knew something nice would happen!" Maisie cried. "You see, dearie—"

Madame de Guitry was still studying Joan through half-closed eyes. She waved a white hand, with shining, deep pink nails—

"The best jeune fille type. Refined. Spirituelle. Oh, my God—how young you are! I'll make a specialty of bridal gowns—wistful, young looking ones—all virginal with tulle—"

Joan stood up, her face flaming. "Please," she begged, "please don't—"

Once—was it really only last spring?—Joan dreamed of herself in a bridal gown, a shimmering, silken thing fragrant with orange blossoms, misty with tulle. She thought of herself, starry-eyed with happiness, looking up at Bill, and Aunt Babe and Aunt Evvie crackling in new black taffetas, with their best pearl brooches pinned on, and their company smiles, beaming from the dim family pew.

"Our niece, Joan Hastings, is marrying Mr. William Martin . . . yes, we're very proud—he's a big engineer now, you know!"

Now she walked in wedding finery, every day in Francine's shop. Shimmer of satin, shadow of lace, breath of orange blossoms—and her heart like lead in her side.

Never had Francine sold so many bridal gowns. Never was there such a bumper crop of Francine-outfitted brides. Fat girls and thin girls. Girls with eager, plain faces. Girls with bright, pretty faces. They came with well-lined purses, and bought the wistful, wispy gowns that Joan modeled.

Maisie, dear, blundering Maisie, wanted her to model for Francine, so she had. It pleased Maisie, and she didn't care what happened to her any more—there was nothing left to live for . . .

"Be nice to her," Francine urged. "I want all my girls to be happy together, and she doesn't mean to be uppish—it's just her way."

So—because Madame (they called Francine Madame) sponsored her, and she was supposed to be living with Madame's mother, "the girls" made a few friendly advances, but only Maud Murphy, the fat, bleached blonde fitter, liked her—and Maud liked most everybody.

Maud had been in vaudeville, of the team of Sheldon and Murphy, song and dance. But Sheldon went into the movies, and Maud set up light housekeeping with an Italian commission merchant—Eyetalian, Maud pronounced it—who grossly exaggerated his bank account and his bachelordom. When his bills and his wife found him out he packed up and left. "And there was I," said Maud, "stranded high and dry, twenty-eight pounds overweight, and not a chance to get back into the big money—"

And here she was, shaking with fat and laughter, telling it all as a good joke, poking fun at herself and everybody else—happy—actually happy! "But," of course, she didn't care the way I did—she couldn't have!" Joan thought, and marveled.

Francine watched Joan like a hawk. She was terribly afraid she would leave her. When Joan shrank from the queer, well-dressed men with thick necks and sagging jowls, who sat in corners and leered while wives or cousins or nieces or wards bought dresses, Francine was right there with a reassuring nod. "Don't pay any attention—silly! They won't hurt you—"

"But they look at me so—"

"Nonsense, Joan—don't be silly. You're such a child!"

And because Bill had failed her, and all her old dreams and hopes were swept away, she thought Francine must be right.

"Go out with the girls once in a while—don't be a prig!"

Maud Murphy spoke to her, too. "Now listen, Angel-face—you're going to get yourself disliked around here if you don't stop high-hatting the girls—"

"I don't high-hat them—"

"You do! Now you can be just as good as you want to be—and take it from lil' Maude, it pays. The next time I set up housekeeping myself it's going to be with a framed marriage license over the door and no mistake. But you don't catch me sticking up my nose because some of the girls have more liberal ideas—like I used to have. There's more than one virtue in this world, and don't you forget it, you little goody-goody—"

Goody-goody. Joan got to hate the word. She didn't want to be a goody-goody, and she didn't want to be like the girls, either. She tried to make friends with them though—tried desperately—and failed.

Anna, the other model, with the round black eyes, and the sleek wings of black hair low over her cheeks, carried herself like a queen, but an automobile salesman had given her a squirrel coat, and sometimes an old man with silvery hair and a high-powered car waited for her after work.

Aline, the chief assistant to Madame, who was cryptically known as Hogan, gossiped bitterly about Anna when her back was turned, but even Joan knew they envied her her conquests.

Only Marguerite Sanderson, working to support a tubercular ex-soldier husband, was different, and nobody minded it if she was standoffish—they called her "poor Marguerite" and planned surprise boxes for her dying boy. She had an excuse for keeping to herself—she had a tragedy to live with—

"Marguerite's a saint!" Maud said.

"Marguerite's a saint—and she liked the girls and they liked her.

"For the last time, Hastings, will you come to my apartment after dinner?" Maud asked. "I swear this is the last time I will ask you!"

Francine heard. She came and patted Joan's shoulder. "Yes, go with the girls, dearie. I'm going to run up to Mamma's myself tonight—I'll tell her where you are."

Joan gulped. "All right. And thanks, Maudie—I'd really like to come!"

CHAPTER XIV.

"WELL, let's start," Anna said, snuggling into the auto salesman's squirrel coat, and adjusting the bond broker's wrist watch over her glove.

Marguerite Sanderson wouldn't come with them; she wanted to go out to the hospital and see her husband instead.

"Pity she wouldn't send him out to the Veterans' Hospital at Livermore or Palo Alto or somewhere," Hogan sniffed. "Then she wouldn't have to be running to see him every night, and it would be better for him anyway. This town is no place for a man with T. B—"

"But he isn't going to get better, so what's the diff?" inquired practical Maudie.

"Well, Murphy! About $200 a month difference! Why sacrifice yourself for a man that is going to die anyway? Pretty soon all she'll have for her trouble will be a lot of gray hairs and a tombstone—"

Maudie Murphy chuckled. "Most of us never have a tombstone for a souvenir!" She patted her brassy curls tenderly. "All I ever had was the gray hairs to remember my true love by—"

They all laughed at that, all but Joan. She didn't laugh. Like Maudie she had nothing to mourn, nothing to remember her love by. Not even a photograph or a letter.

"The regular dinner?" a waiter was asking. They were at the little Italian restaurant already, and Joan's thoughts so far away. . . .

"Regular nothing!" Maudie boomed. "What do you take us for, hicks? Just because five lone women—"

"Oh, go on and order and don't talk so much!" Hogan cut in. Several diners were turning to look at them, Maudie talked so loud. The orchestra struck up. Two or three couples rose and began to dance in the center of the room.

Someone was waving at Anna, a little man with shell rimmed glasses and a bald head. "Call him over here—he's got two others with him!" Aline whispered, but Anna wouldn't. She glided over to his table, smiling vaguely.

"This is the last time I go anywhere with her!" Hogan snorted. "The same thing every time. I'm sick of it. Do you think she'd introduce him? No—not her. That was Arlin Savenski, the tobacco man. Worth a mint. The selfish pig!"

Maude and Aline melted away while Hogan was talking. They were dancing too. Hogan's hatchet face under her girlish purple hat was red and angry. And then a young boy came and stood beside them.

(To be continued tomorrow.)

A Modern Piper -:- By Fanny Darrell

© 1928 by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc. Great Britain rights reserved.

FANNY DARRELL

WHEN love plays the tune, everyone in the world dances. That's what we mean when we say the modern Piper. Of course you remember the story of the Pied Piper who played so beautifully that he enticed all the children from their homes, and they gladly and willingly followed him, because their tiny feet couldn't resist the tunes which he so merrily played.

Well, that's what happens when a lovely lady sounds the sweet call of love, and all those whose ears are attune to the music hasten to follow.

Of course, she doesn't lead them to destruction, but she does lead them a merry chase for awhile. Some tire and drop out until one by one the followers dwindle down to but one faithful heart which can't resist the lure of her love-song. And that's the one whom Dan has selected for her.

MEDITATIONS of a MARRIED WOMAN

by HELEN ROWLAND

TIPS FOR OCTOBER BRIDES

GETTING married, like getting into the White House, requires skill, personality, tact, hard work—and blind luck. But the real TEST comes after the campaign—when you have to hold onto your "platform" with one hand and onto your common sense with the other.

When you marry, remember—

That marriage is a whole-time job—with a lot of "overtime" thrown in, and no Sundays or holidays off.

* * *

That the primary thing to consider is, not whether you can get along with a man's salary or not, but whether or not you can get along with the MAN.

HELEN ROWLAND

That more love has been strangled to death with solicitation and stifled to death with caresses than ever was starved to death; and the one great secret of making a man happy consists in knowing when to let him ALONE.

* * *

That a handsome man, a rich man, or a brilliant man may make a fascinating lover; but when it comes to picking a husband, a BUSY man is the safest bet.

That marriage is a partnership—and that doesn't mean that one-half of the firm should work like a dog in order that the other half may live like a prize Angora.

That, sometimes, you are going to be worshipped like a plaster saint, sometimes hated like an alarm clock, and sometimes dodged like an accusing conscience—but seldom treated as a normal, intelligent human being.

* * *

That every man is a study in black and white, with two natures forever battling within his poor, tormented soul; and to most men, "repentance" is merely the interval between the headache and the next temptation.

* * *

That a man marries a woman because he thinks he has found the One Plus-Perfect Being in all the world—and then spends the rest of his life in trying to "improve" her.

That every husband is a little "efficiency expert" in the home, who is never so happy as when he is giving a woman "advice," and telling her how to control the servants or how to manage the tradesmen.

* * *

That the qualities a man seeks in a bride no more resemble those he will want in a wife than a jazz-song resembles an old-fashioned lullaby.

That not every man who leaves word that he is "in conference" is out lunching with his stenographer. SOME of them are in conference!

That a woman may have nerves, temperament, curiosity, caprices or a martyr-complex, but the GROUCH is strictly a masculine prerogative.

That all this chatter about "personal liberty" in marriage is just "smart talk." Because when you marry, you lay down your personal liberty and take off the armor of your individuality. And your only reward is LOVE.

* * *

But, it's worth the PRICE!

HOW TO KEEP WELL by Royal S. Copeland M.D.

Thorough Cleansing Aids Skin Troubles

WHY do some persons have clear, fresh, perfect skin, while others suffer from rashes, pimples and all sorts of defects? If you are one of the afflicted, you have asked yourself this question a thousand times. You have been embarrassed and humiliated time and time again. The chances are you have spent a small fortune, buying lotions, salves and perhaps a trunkful of patent medicines.

DR. COPELAND

There are several factors involved. In the first place, skins differ in texture, size of pores, circulation of the blood and general cleansing properties. The fortunate people are those who have the kind of face covering that resists infection and inflammation.

Unfortunately, many persons have coarse, large-pored, greasy skins. Their powers of resistance are low. Most of the time there is some sort of an eruption to mar the beauty and cause annoyance.

We are what we are when it comes to the nature of our body tissues. This is a fundamental thing beyond human control.

But even so, there are many things we can do to make such a skin attractive. This is the subject I want to discuss today. Of chief importance, first to be thought of, is cleanliness.

You will say at once that, of course, you keep your face clean. But you don't. This kind of a skin is thoroughly cleansed only at the cost of great effort. A dab of water and a quick rinse off won't clean it.

After the ordinary washing of almost any face, it is amazing what a layer of dirt is left. Moisten the corner of a clean towel with a little alcohol or cologne. After washing and drying of the face, rub it with this moistened towel. There will be a black smudge on the cloth.

It is clear that soap and water alone is not enough for a greasy skin. The grease must be "cut" and thoroughly mopped with the wash cloth to free the surface of dirt.

You cannot hope to have a clear skin unless it is cleansed better than you are in the habit of treating it. Never go to bed until you have cared for the face as I have suggested.

There are simple cleansing creams that have real merit. After washing with soap and water, lots of both, and scrubbing with a little diluted alcohol or a similar solvent of grease, apply the cleansing cream. Rub it in gently, first making sure that your hands are perfectly clean.

In the morning give the face another good washing with soap and water. Then gently massage the skin, squeezing out the contents of the pores. End the process by bathing the skin in cold water.

Blackheads are little less than a filling or choking of the pores of the skin with the secretions of the sweat and grease glands, mixed with dirt, dead skin cells, cinders and filthy soap. If this mass is left in place it makes a splendid breeding place for pus germs. It acts as a foreign body, just as much so as a splinter in your finger. You know how that will "fester." In much the same way the blackhead will fester and cause a lot of trouble.

The bowels must be given attention. Chronic constipation permits germ growth in the bowel and encourages the development of poisons which affect the skin.

You must make sure the kidneys, too, are acting as they should. Body poisons are carried away when they act right.

These are a few of the many things the unfortunate victim of skin trouble must keep in mind. Try these for a while and see if your face does not improve in appearance.

Answers to Health Queries

J. A. Q.—What is a good tonic for dry hair? My scalp is covered with crusty dandruff.

A.—A stimulating ointment massaged well into the scalp should help this condition.

C. O. Q.—What causes the joints to crack?

A.—This is due to lack of synovial fluid. Massage the parts with warm cod-liver oil. This will probably help you.

Love's Embers

Absorbing Sequel to "Revelations of a Wife"

By ADELE GARRISON

Madge Solves the Code Message

AT the hoot of the owl Princess Olina sprang to her feet with a little terrified exclamation. I moved close to her and put my hand reassuringly upon her arm. Lillian spoke in matter of fact tones.

"I suppose that is the signal of the red-bearded man," she said as coolly as if she were speaking of a vegetable peddler's cry. "Do you recognize it?"

"Oh, yes," Olina said patiently, compelling herself to calmness.

"Then you'll have to go out to see him," Lillian went on. "Remember, he's a friend, and he apparently is near the house. He said he would come without the other man, so some one of us can go out with you."

"That will be my job," Dicky said firmly. "I know the man, remember, knew him overseas, so there won't have to be any explanations if I go. Come along, Miss Lincoln. I'll see that you are not frightened."

He picked up a scarf and put it around the girl's shoulders, and in another minute they were outside the door and walking in the direction of the owl's hoot. But I was not looking at them. My eyes had been attracted to a curious expression on Lillian's face as she listened to Dicky's proposal that he should be the one to escort Miss Lincoln. It was as if his action had been something she expected, something which confirmed some theory of hers. And I distinctly saw her fingers clench into her palms.

It was less than five minutes before Dicky and Princess Olina came back. The girl was deadly pale, and Dicky himself was not quite calm as he delivered the message which the red-bearded man had given.

"He can't hold his friend Sergius off any longer than tomorrow night," he says. "At 9 o'clock he expects to give the owl signal again, and then Miss Lincoln is to come out with the message she has for him. He's already told you about the plan Sergius has to kidnap her and hold her for ransom. The plot is well laid. Sergius has a swift, small truck in readiness upon a wood road not far from here, one ostensibly loaded with vegetables for the market, but in which a hiding place has been made for the girl. In that way he's planned to get her off the island through New York and up into the hill section of Jersey before morning. Then he's planned to transfer her again and rush her to a hiding place in the mountains that he's had in readiness for some time.

"It's too bad to spoil such well-laid plans," Lillian drawled with a shrewd look at Princess Olina's white face, "but Sergius sure has a surprise coming to him. Come, my dear, I prescribe bed for you, and a late sleep in the morning. Don't have a single tremor. We'll take good care of you."

She and I went with the girl to her room, gave her a sedative and sat with her until she had dropped off to sleep. Then with excitement spurring me, I went back to my room.

"I'll have to work all night," I told Lillian and she nodded.

"I'll see that you have hot, black coffee, and ice cloths for your head when you need them," she promised. "But, of course, we do need that thing completed."

"You shall have it," I said, and after a night of such steady torturing application as I hope never to put in again, I completed my translation. Nothing remained but the copying, and I aroused Lillian from the sleep upon my couch which she had taken sensibly between her trips to the kitchen to prepare the fresh coffee upon which I had worked.

"Look!" I said, and as she read over what I had written she caught at the table.

"It's the thing we needed," she said. "It will take Allen's chemical knowledge to translate the formula, but we know it's that of a new and powerful explosive, worse than anything so far attempted because enough of it can be made by one man from cheap materials to destroy a city. And these names—you have two lists—oh, I see, one a list marked for murder, the other with the names of some of this precious gang's representatives at high courts."

She scanned them hastily, exchanged a glance of horror with me as the name of a high executive of our own country met her eyes upon the list of those opposite it upon the list of conspirators she saw a name almost as well-known and belonging to the highest government circle.

"You've done something for your country this day, my girl," she said, and then bent over the paper again.

"A date after the name of each ruler," she said. "That must be the time set for their departure from this world. And Olina's own mother and father upon the list with a date only two months away! I suppose this Transvanian name upon the other side is Olina's precious friend at court who gave her the message. I think she'd better know this. It may stiffen her backbone so she'll stand tonight's ordeal better. You say you have this all done except the copying, all checked and everything?"

I nodded, too exhausted almost to speak.

"Then you tumble into bed, this second," she commanded. "I'll waken you in four hours. Will that give you time to copy this and get the fake message ready by noon?"

From my pillows I gave her another nod, and then I sank into exhausted slumber.

Prevent Shoes Slipping

Shoes which slip at the back should be treated as follows: Take a piece of garter elastic about six inches long, and sew it inside the back of the shoe, gradually tapering it off towards the instep each side. A piece of velvet glued on the inside of the back of the shoe will sometimes prevent slipping.

Tomorrow's Horoscope

Saturday, October 20

THE planetary configurations for this day point to great ambitions, with a lively march of events toward the desired goal, albeit there may be a detrimental indulgence in turbulent and impetuous conduct. With prudence and controlled action there should be increase in possessions, with general progress and rewards for patient endeavor and perseverance. It is a suitable time for the renewal of contracts or agreements, for correspondence, but be careful as to loopholes for loss and treachery.

Those whose birthday it is are on the eve of a year of general advancement and prosperity, with labor and patience rewarded substantially, and with satisfactory new arrangements. But be careful not to mar this good fortune by rash and impetuous actions nor by dangers of treachery or fraud.

A child born on this day may be ambitious and progressive, but also turbulent and hasty, qualities for undoing unless restrained.

WOMEN AMONG 15 IMMERSED BY SPROUL

Fifteen of the many persons who have professed conversion at services conducted by Evangelist John W. Sproul in Glory Barn, Carson street, were baptized last night at the first baptismal services held in the barn.

Eight men and seven women were immersed in a huge tank beneath the platform, the services being witnessed by almst 5,000 persons.

In addition, 200 other persons "hit the trail," professing Christianity.

Denying rumors that he charged fees to persons who had professed healing or conversion, Evangelist Sproul declared there had been many reports that money was being collected at every possible opportunity.

"Liars and always liars," the evangelist said.

Mr. Sproul announced that another baptismal service would be held Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock and that tomorrow night he would broadcast his sermon from radio station WJAS.

Evangelist Sproul last night delivered a special sermon on baptism. He said in part:

"Baptism signifies death, buriel and resurrection. Baptism must come after you are saved. Christ went down into the grave and came up from the grave.

"In the upper room, the one hundred and twenty disciples were immersed in the Holy Spirit.

"Peter preached, 'Repent and be baptized.' 'A baby cannot believe and therefore it is only the adult who can be a candidate for Christian Baptism.'"

Prudence Penny's Sunday Menus

By PRUDENCE PENNY.

Cream of Mushroom Soup.
Broiled Chicken.
Broiled Tomatoes.
French Fried Potatoes.
Asparagus Salad.
Hot Apple Pie.
Coffee.

SUNDAYS and chicken dinners seem almost to be synonymous, and I can think of no nicer way to serve chicken than to broil it. To dress it for broiling, singe, wipe and with a sharp pointed knife make a cut through the backbone, the entire length of the chicken. Lay open and remove contents from inside. Cut out the bones on either side of backbone, remove from breastbone, then cut through the tendons at the joints.

Sprinkle with salt and pepper, place in a well greased broiler. Broil 20 minutes over a clear fire watching carefully and turning the broiler, so that all parts may be equaly browned.

The flesh side must be exposed to the fire the greater part of the time, as the skin side will brown quickly. Remove to a hot platter, spread with soft butter and sprinkle with salt and pepper; dot over with butter and bake 15 minutes in a hot oven. Then broil to finish the cooking.

BROILED TOMATOES are a particular favorite of mine—and I hope that they are of yours, too. They contain so many valuable vitamins, that is behooves all housewives to serve them often, for health's sake. To prepare them, wipe and cut in halves, crosswise, cutting off several thin slices from the rounding part of each half. Spread with salt and pepper, dip in crumbs, then egg, then crumbs again, place in a well buttered broiler and broil six to eight minutes.

WHEN the chicken goes in for its final broiling, the tomatoes may go too, thus broiling both at the same time.

Arrange the asparagus daintily on crisp lettuce leaves, cover with mayonnaise and serve.

Apples are plentiful now—so we'll finish our dinner with the ever-popular hot apple pie. Serve it with a wedge of American cheese.

BAKED CARAMEL CUSTARD—Two cups milk, 2 eggs, 4 tablespoons sugar, pinch of salt, ⅛ teaspoon nutmeg, ½ teaspoon Blue Ribbon Malt Extract (hop flavored.) Mix all together. Pour into individual baking dishes. Place dishes in a pan of warm water and bake in a moderate oven until when cut with a knife the knife comes out clean, or the mixture is firm.

HERE are a few recipes which make delicious soups for both the children and the adults of the family.

OATMEAL TOMATO SOUP—Boil three cups of water and add add eight tablespoons oatmeal or rolled oats, one cup stewed tomato, a slice of onion, a few slices of green pepper and a teaspoon of sugar. Cook one hour in covered kettle. Replace water which boils away. Stir occasionally. Watch carefully to prevent burning. Strain through a sieve. Add salt.

* * *

VEGETABLE CREAM SOUP—Mix four teaspoons flour and enough cold milk to make a thin paste. Add to three cups scalded milk and cook ten or fifteen minutes. Add four tablespoons butter, salt, and one cup of cooked vegetable. Cook two or three minutes and serve.

* * *

BEAN MILK SOUP—Wash one cup dried lima beans and soak in cold water over night. Bring to a boil and cook with one-half cup celery and a slice of onion, three or four hours. Put through a sieve, add three cups milk, and heat through. Season with salt and butter and serve.

RAW SALAD—Try a raw salad. Cut fine in matchlike pieces, ½ cup each of carrots, white turnips, cabbage and celery and serve on a bed of lettuce with your favorite dressing. All the vegetables must be fresh and young and cut in fine strips or small dice. Sliced cucumbers, radishes, spinach and tomatoes may all be made into combinations equally delicious and healthful.

CARROT OMELET—Boil diced carrots until tender. Saute one tablespoonful of minced onion in two tablespoonsful of butter, add one cup of cooked carrots and toss in the butter. Turn the heat low and keep hot while you prepare the omelet.

Beat six eggs. Add salt and pepper and drop by spoonfuls into hot, deep bacon fat. Make small omelets about the size of a saucer and put two or three in the pan at a time, but not enough so they touch. Splash the hot fat over them and when cooked, drain on brown paper a minute. Place a spoonful of the carrots on top and serve.

CARROT AND ORANGE MARMALADE—Dice six carrots and cook until tender in as little water as possible. Cut three oranges in small bits and add the grated rind and juice of one lemon. Measure carrots and fruit and add two-thirds as much sugar. Simmer until clear, turn into jelly glasses and when cold, cover with hot paraffin.

PUREE OF CARROTS—Cook six medium sized carrots in boiling, salted water, until quite tender. Drain and mash. Melt two tablespoons of butter in saucepan, add carrots, ½ teaspoon each of salt and sugar and cook, stirring so that carrots do not brown. After five minutes, stir in ¼ cup cream, warm and serve

* * *

STEWED CARROTS—Scrape 6 large carrots and throw them in cold water for 15 minutes. Put in saucepan, cover with boiling water. Add salt and let cook for half an hour, boiling steadily. Drain off all water, cut neatly into one-half inch dice, or slice thin. Put tablespoon butter in frying pan, add 1 tablespoon flour, blending well, but without browning. Add ½ pint milk, letting it cook down to a rich cream sauce. Add carrots to this and let them simmer gently for about 20 minutes. Add a little chopped parsley and sugar and serve hot.

BROILED MUSHROOMS—Prepare the mushrooms as for the above recipe. Arrange on a rack, brush tops of each with melted butter, and broil for about 10 minutes. Serve on toast with chopped parsley.

DISGUISED CARROTS—One cup grated carrots, ½ cup breadcrumbs, 2 egg yolks, ¼ cup sugar, ½ cup milk, ¾ teaspoon lemon juice, 2 egg whites, little salt.

Beat egg yolk, add sugar, carrots, breadcrumbs, salt and milk, then cook mixture in double boiler until it has thickened. Stir often. Fill buttered ramekins or small baking dish and bake 15 to 20 minutes in moderate oven. Pile stiffly beaten egg whites, mixed with tablespoon

Our Daily Short Story

Sally's Complex

By EVANGELINE WEIR

SALLY M'KEAN was 36, strangely enough, she admitted it. A healthy, happy girl was she with a good job, and enough margin to play or rest a bit as she chose. Sally deprecated women of her age who were forever seeking the so-called fountain of youth, and she did not hesitate to tease these vain specimens of humanity.

"Why should one try to be what one—ain't?" she added for lack of a better idiom. "Why should we try to hide the years by means of short skirts, bobs and facial masks? No one is really deceived."

Her friends tried to show her the new road and its advantages, but Sally was "set" in the old rut. It was not a woman, but a man who finally pulled her out and started her on the "down grade," as she expressed it with satisfaction.

Ralph Brown was an age old friend, and privxileged to express himself to Sally with the freedom of a brother. He enjoyed being with this old-fashioned girl but he did not like her clothes.

"This is the age of youth, Sally," he told her one evening as they sat on the hearth, he indulging in a favorite tobacco.

"You mean this is the age of dolled-up fools—aged morons in flapper clothes."

That kind of a retort was just like Sally.

"Look here, girl, you must move with the crowd if you ever expect to marry an up-to-date man," he added.

"Why marry—I can take care of myself," she bantered good-naturedly. "Just added $500 to my bank account and paid cash for the new fur coat."

"Don't like the coat, Sally, it's suitable for a woman of 60."

"It's substantial," she retorted. "I should like to see you in a gray squirrel with a blue and silver hat. That's your sort of combination."

"'Will you walk into my parlor? said a spider to a fly,'" she sang with shining eyes.

"Sweet creature, you're witty and wise," he laughed.

"Ralph, it is bachelors like you who spoil women." She was frowning now.

Ralph seemed amused.

"Stop!" he said, holding up his hand like a traffic cop. "Our friendship is so old I fear it cannot stand such a strain as this."

"Patches are possible—even in friendships," Sally answered. "For a year you've been urging me to wear gowns and incidentally ways which are too young for me. I spent $15 for a certain pair of shoes which you advertised, and I still have 'em. An excellent reminder of my folly and your ability to make one spend."

The man's eyes rested on the woman's sensible well-made shoes. Then he looked away.

"You had such pretty feet when you were a girl, Sally," he sighed.

Sally was still proud of her small, well-shaped feet.

"They're good-looking feet yet," she declared.

"Not in that style of shoe."

"And my hair! Will you suggest the bob fitted to my style and years?"

"It is curly; you could sample them all, Sally."

"Thanks, I shall follow your advice. I'll try them one by one until I find the most youthful and disfiguring one. If we are going to the play, we'd better start now. I wish I had a white ermine coat and a jade gown to wear."

"You'd be gorgeous in that," he answered.

During the week following young Mr. Brown's criticism on her feet, Sally bought new shoes quite unlike the sensible ones she considered suitable to her age. She was pleased with them, however, and admitted to herself that

Our Daily Short Story

Sally's Complex

By EVANGELINE WEIR

her feet looked quite pretty and very dainty in them. It was during this reaction that she received an invitation to a reception where clothes counted almost as much as brains did. A wild idea of appearing in a gown suitable for her 'teen-aged niece entered her head and remained to tease her into obedience. Sally had succumbed to the style idea.

To the amazement of her friends she appeared in jade green, which was the last word in gowns; her hair was coiffed in the latest fashion, her feet were shod with silver slippers. Her complexion looked remarkably fresh and young.

"You look like a new woman," said Ralph when he came to call for her.

"Just an old one painted over," said Sally, and laughed at her jest.

"Looks like you've developed a boy friend, Sal," said Ralph. "Who's the lucky man?"

"No, boy friend. It's just that clothes have demoralized me. I look young and feel foolish. You're responsible for my folly."

"Sally!"

"Do not be alarmed, Ralph, I am not in the least in love."

Ralph began taking a new interest in his old girl friend. She had blossomed into a charming, up-to-date girl and was a great favorite, much sought in the circle of their friends. He began to think of her as a possible companion for the coming years. Life would never grow stale with a woman like Sally.

One day he looked at her with a light in his eyes which surprised Sally so that her eyes widened and left her speechless.

His own danced with mirth as he asked:

"Have you discovered a new world?"

"A new species," Sally retorted.

Ralph Brown laughed and changed the conversation, leaving the seed germinate in Sally's fertile mind. She was intelligent and could see the advantage of such a tie for them both. He was amused that he should feel this way after his 40 years of bachelorhood, and that it should be little old-fashioned Sally who had stirred his feelings into flame.

When he had gone, Sally studied herself in the tall mirror.

"I am out of the rut and needing," she reflected.

Ralph Brown, sure of himself now, smiled softly as he saw Sally try in many ways to avoid him.

"She hates to surrender," he told himself. "I'll give her time."

At last, growing impatient, he walked unannounced into Sally's home and made known his desires.

Sally was caught and tried to escape in her usual way.

"You are too old for me, Ralph; I've subtracted 10 years from my age."

"Sally McKean!" he said, moving toward her. "I've been teased and bantered with long enough."

Sally was moving backward to escape his arms.

"The wind is in the wrong direction," she said.

"If it's a storm, I'm willing to face it—with you."

"Then I'm engaged," Sally said, holding up her left hand. "Your work."

"Nothing succeeds like success," Ralph Brown said, as he gathered her closely to him.

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH'S SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

Woman's Exchange Will Hold Sale, Nov. 27, in Hotel Schenley

PITTSBURGH society women always have had some favored philanthropy, and always have been generous to charities. And they have gone a big step ahead of all this too, for they believe in helping less fortunate people to help themselves. The medium they have chosen for this work is the Woman's Exchange, Penn avenue, where needlework and baked goods, made by women who must help their families financially and who can not leave their homes, are sold.

Each year the board of managers of the exchange holds a sale of articles, made by deserving women of the city, especially suited for Christmas gifts. Last year the sale was held in the marquee built for Sarah Mellon Scaife's wedding, don't you remember? This fall the sale will be held in the ballroom of the Hotel Schenley on Tuesday, November 27, and a bridge will be conducted as usual in connection with the sale.

AND while we are still "benefit-minded," I've heard that some well known society folks are patrons for the matinee to be given on Friday, October 26, at 2:30 o'clock in the Pitt Theater by the Sewickley Valley Hospital Cot Club for the benefit of the Pennsylvania Committee on Penal Affairs.

Mrs. Matthew Taylor, Mrs. Thomas A. Mellon, Mrs. J. Hanson Rose, Mrs. W. F. Rust, Mrs. Harry H. Willock, Mrs. George E. Shaw, Daniel E. Crane and Roy Hunt are among those who have given their patronage to the event.

And the ushers for the performance will be members of the younger set, including Harriet Wainright, Jane Allderdice, Betty McCullough, Marion Stone, Olivercita Sutton, Louise Evans, Helen West and Emily Stuart, all buds of this season; Eleanor McCargo, Mrs. B. F. Jones III, Clodagh McCune, Mary Oliver, Mrs. Ledlie W. Young, Mrs. Lewis A. Park and Josephine Nicola.

I'VE just heard of several more entertainments planned for Alice Childs, who will marry Oliver P. Nicola, Jr., next Thursday. On Monday, Mrs. Thomas Cook will entertain with a dinner and dance in the Pittsburgh Golf Club.

And the A. Marshall Bells will give a luncheon in their home on Sunday in honor of the popular bride-to-be.

YOU may have been wondering, like me, whether there would be any Pittsburgh girls in the bridal party for the marriage of Ellen Euphemia Postell, daughter of Mrs. John Cunningham Postell, of Savannah, Ga., and Marshel Clarke Reed, son of the Thomas McKennan Reeds, of this city, which will take place on Wednesday, November 14, in Savannah. There is one girl to represent the bridegroom's home city, Mary V. Flood, daughter of the M. B. Floods, of Forbes street, a college friend of the future bride.

The matron of honor will be Mrs. L. V. Bean, of Waycross, Ga., Ellen's sister, and the bridesmaids will be Sarah Freeman, Lee Highsmith and Helena Cunningham, of Savannah, and, of course, Mary Flood.

Robert R. Reed will be his brother's best man, and another brother, Leonard W. Reed, will be one of the ushers.

NEARLY all Pittsburgh families manage their migrations so that they'll be at home for the late fall and winter season, but there are a few who roam away no matter how attractive the social calendar is. The junior James B. Lyons and their daughters Janet and Adele, of Pittsburgh and Englewood, have taken an apartment on East Sixtieth street, New York, where they will spend the winter.

A PARTY added to the list of those given for the debutantes is a dinner dance which Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Moresby White, of Carnegie place, are planning for December 15 in the Pittsburgh Field Club. They will entertain for Katharine Schley.

THE altar of the First United Presbyterian Church was decorated with palms and ferns, with two huge urns of fall flowers, for the wedding of Miss Helen Elizabeth Leitch, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Add Harvie Leitch, of Terrace street, and Harold Edwin Searle, of New York, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Searle, of Windsor, Canada, which took place last night at 7:30 o'clock.

The bride wore ivory satin trimmed with d'Alencon lace, with a full court train of the satin. Her tulle veil was caught with a bandeau of d'Alencon lace and orange blossoms, and she carried orchids and lillies of the valley.

Miss Vera Searle, of Windsor, sister of the bridegroom, as maid of honor, appeared in aquamarine velvet, made long in back and short in front, and she carried orchid dahlias. Similarly fashioned frocks were worn by the bridesmaids, Mrs. Trevanian Roxbrough and Miss Dorothy Bergman, in maize, with bouquets of rose dahlias, and Miss Catherine Kohne and Miss Janet Hill, in rose, with bouquets of yellow dahlias. Four small nieces of the bride, including Helen Gilmore and Jeanne, Dorothy and Elnore Leitch, were flower girls, wearing frocks of flesh-tinted georgette and carrying pendant bouquets of varicolored flowers.

George Kramer Leitch, brother of the bride, was best man and the ushers included Harold E. Deitrich, of Chicago; Jules Labarthe, Dr. Gebhard Stegeman and Trevanian Roxbrough, of Pittsburgh; Paul D. Gebhart, of New York, and George H. Roberts, of Easton, Pa.

A reception and dinner followed the ceremony in the Pittsburgh Athletic Association annex, with covers laid for 15 at the bridal table. Mrs. Leitch wore violet velvet and Mrs. Searle, black chiffon velvet. Mr. and Mrs. Searle will take a trip to Bermuda and after November 15 will be at home in New York.

Mrs. Mayer will do three groups of songs, in costume, first appearing in a medieval gown for songs of old France, then in a Jenny Lind group, and third, songs by modern composers. Tea will follow the program. This affair is the club's annual musicale, the date for which has been changed from November 7.

IT was an exceptionally delightful affair which Epoch Club members gave yesterday afternoon to open their season and to honor their new president, Mrs. Edwin J. Stockslager. Mrs. Charles Orchard, last year's executive head, was hostess at her home in Hobart street, Squirrel Hill. With the exception of several soprano solos by Msr. Charles H. Aufhammer, with Mrs. George McKee as accompanist, there was no set program, but there were several informal talks on vacation experiences—a lake trip, an airplane flight, a view of the Graf Zeppelin—which were interestingly related. The club colors, blue and silver, predominated in the tea table decorations, where the centerpiece was of pale pink dahlias.

MERCHANTS TO CELEBRATE SIXTH ST. BRIDGE OPENING

Finishing touches have been completed and the lower downtown section of Pittsburgh in the neighborhood of the Sixth Street Bridge is all set for the final opening this evening to pedestrians, vehicular and street car traffic of the new bridge, which has been closed since January 3, 1927.

There is great cause for rejoicing among the merchants, whose business was affected during the interruption of traffic and the construction of the new bridge.

The opening of the Sixth Street Bridge completes the last of the series of three bridges which connect the North Side and territory beyond with the Golden Triangle. The North Side business men and business interests are going to celebrate in a fitting manner and the business houses on the Golden Triangle side are no less enthusiastic.

Those who visit the downtown section will see both at day time and night time decorative displays of electric lights and flags.

Improved triangular shape of famous O-Cedar Polish Mop cleans even the most inaccessible places

Ordinary mops and brushes are round pegs in square holes when it comes to cleaning corners of rooms and closets. But cleaning these pesky places is no job for the housewife equipped with the improved triangular O-Cedar Polish Mop. Into them she goes without a moment's hesitation. No back-breaking prying and probing. Just once over, and corners are as dustless, gleaming and clean as the broader surfaces of the floor.

Hoarding Money at Home Risky—Fay King

By FAY KING

THE other morning a man on his way to work bought his morning paper. He almost passed out of the picture when he read that the place where he was employed had been destroyed by fire in the night.

Arriving out of breath and weak of heart, he searched madly until he found his old pair of shoes, badly burned. With trembling hands he tore apart the soles, sinking to the floor in great relief, to find the money he had hidden there merely singed around the edge.

What luck!

The other day we read of a man who died leaving a will telling his aged wife that railroad stock was hidden in the hollow of their brass bed.

Only a few days ago a man's wife accidentally burned a sum of money when she started the breakfast fire with a newspaper in which her husband had hidden a small fortune in bills!

When will people ever learn how foolish and unwise it is to hide money around like that?

There is probably no place that one may think of to hide money that is not already known and would be searched by a robber.

The proper place for valuables is in a safety deposit box in a bank. No one can open this box except the renter, and those to whom he personally gives signed permission.

Some persons seem to think that money deposited in a savings account cannot be used. It is always possible to withdraw a needed amount.

The proper place for money not in circulation is the bank! Do not be afraid to enter the finest bank in the world. They treat the humblest depositor as nicely as they treat the biggest.

CRIPPLED BANKER, SUED, ASKS ALIMONY FROM WIFE

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Oct. 17.—(AP.)—A wife is asked to pay $150 a month alimony in a divorce petition filed here in Circuit Court.

John Hussey, 65, former vice president of the South Louisville bank, stated in his reply to the divorce action of Mrs. Birdie B. Hussey that in 26 years together they had saved $200,000, but the property was in her name.

He is now practically penniless and crippled. He asserts, and is about to be expelled from their home.

In addition to the temporary alimony of $150 month, Hussey asks $50,000, which, he asserts, is only a part of the estate he has entrusted to his wife since they were married in New Haven, Conn.

Mrs. Hussey asked a divorce on statuary grounds and Hussey does not contest.

SAYS THE WORLD LOOKS BRIGHTER

Library (Pa.) Lady Tells How Ten Herbs Swept Away All Her Health Troubles.

"Since using Ten Herbs, the whole world looks brighter," was the recent statement of Mrs. Jessie Collins, Route 1, Library, Pa., (near Pittsburgh), to the Ten Herbs Man, who is at May's Main Store, 529 Liberty Avenue, Pittsburgh, where he is daily demonstrating this famous herbal compound to crowds of men and women. "Your medicine has made me feel like a new woman," Mrs. Collins continued.

"For some time I had been gradually losing weight. I felt out of sorts; was irritated at every little thing, and worried over trifles; in fact, life had become a burden. Even the prattle of the children would almost set me wild, and I was easily excited. I could not sleep, but would roll and toss for hours, and would arise feeling more tired than when I went to bed. I was troubled with constipation, and my liver did not work properly. Black spots were continually before my eyes. There were pains across my back, and at times I was dizzy.

"After reading about Ten Herbs in the papers and noting the statements of people who claimed they had been benefited by your preparation, I decided to try it, although I had little faith in any kind of medicine. Soon after starting to use Ten Herbs I found, to my delight and surprise, a marked improvement in my condition. Now I can enjoy a good meal without fear of distress afterwards. I have been relieved of gas, and my whole nervous system seems to have been benefited. The children's noise does not bother me any more, and the pains have vanished from my back. I gladly recommend Ten Herbs to anyone suffering as I was."

The Ten Herbs Man is at May's Main Store, 529 Liberty Avenue, Pittsburgh, where he is daily meeting the public and explaining the merits of this medicine.

TONG WAR ENDED QUIETLY

The war of Chinese tong men is over, a truce having been signed by leaders of the On Leong and Hip Sing organizations.

Just who arranged the armistice or where it took place is not known but local leaders notified police yesterday that the special detail of police could be withdrawn from Chinatown.

The same persons who requested the police protection were those who notified police that the trouble had ended.

It is believed that the truce was arranged in either Chicago or New York.

SYNOD PLEDGES TO BOOST DRY CANDIDATES

GROVE CITY, Pa., Oct. 19.—(AP.)—The Synod of Pennsylvania of the Presbyterian Church, meeting here, has pledged itself to seek election to all offices, high and low, of men who will give themselves sincerely in every effort to make "prohibition a success." Two hundred clergymen and laymen joined in the pledge.

The pledge came with the report of the Board of Christian Education submitted yesterday by Dr. Glenn Shaffer, Carlisle.

On the recommendation of Dr. Percy Burtt, Sharon, Dr. Ben Gimmell, Philadelphia, retiring stated clerk, was presented $500. It was decided to extend his term until the work of the present synod is completed.

Announcement was made that the synod had taken over Beaver College, Jenkintown, Pa., following an address by its president, Dr. W. B. Greenway.

The committee on bills and overtures recommended the synod be incorporated, and that commissioners be appointed to represent it in preparing for the celebration in 1931 at Pittsburgh of the one hundredth anniversary of the Western Pennsylvania Missionary Society.

No further contracts to be made by the church council of synod executives for any field work of the synod, was another major action. Huntingdon Presbytery, joined by four others, objected to the office of synodical executive. The present term of the official does not expire for three years.

October 21 was set aside as a day of prayer for the young people of the church.

A general appeal for relief of the storm-stricken Presbyterians of Florida was made.

EDUCATION DISCUSSED

Dr. W. C. Netler, Grove City College, presided last night at the popular meeting, when the question of education was discussed by Dr. Ethelbert Warfield, head of Wilson College, and Dr. W. M. Lewis, head of Lafayette College.

The synod decided to change the time of meeting from October to some date between June 10 and July 10, at some educational institution of the church.

Dr. C. H. Williamson was named chairman of the committee on program and field activities for a term of three years. He is pastor of the local church.

SO FAR THIS WEEK...

159 living rooms have been made more "liveable." Cheerless parlors, long out of date, have been transformed into living rooms that are smartly modern, alluringly beautiful and luxurious. A week ago 159 parlors were shunned because of drab furnishings to which clung the gloomy atmosphere of another day. Today these rooms, furnished modernly and magnificently, ring with gayety. Cold, uninviting furniture, cumbersome and uncomfortable, has been replaced by exquisite new overstuffed suites and occasional pieces, alive with elegance, color and charm. What a difference!

And what change it has made in 159 families whose home lives have been made more interesting. 159 families have been drawn closer. We take pardonable pride in this definite "Better Homes" achievement.

WHY IS IT?

One would not venture forth with a 1910 model automobile nor hoop-skirts. You don't wait until your clothes or automobile are worn-out. You religiously pursue the style in motor cars and apparel. Why not, then, keep your home in style? Owning "lifetime" furniture is no longer a virtue. With changing styles and improved designs, making for greater comfort and beauty, your home, too, must follow the mode. Trade in your furniture just like you trade in your car!

HARRIS SIGNS TO MANAGE TIGERS

SUN-TELEGRAPH SPORTS

BEST IN PITTSBURGH — FRIDAY, OCTOBER 19, 1928 — THIRTY-THREE

SOUTH PARK LINKS EXCELLENT LAYOUT

LAYOUT TO BE READY FOR NEXT SEASON

Work is progressing rapidly on the new South Park county golf course, near Broughton, and the layout will be ready for play next season. Above is a panoramic view of the ground under construction in front of the site whereon the clubhouse is to be erected.

SPORT COMMENT by JAMES J. LONG

Bush Stand Paves Way for Harris to Sign With Tigers—Killefer Has Chance for Boston Berth—Gans' Lofty Terms Kill Local Match—McLain Newest Indian Football Star.

AFTER Donie Bush made it clear that he was not considering any possibility that might have existed for him to become manager of the Detroit baseball club, indications pointed more strongly than ever to Bucky Harris as the probable successor of George Moriarty as the head of the Tiger team in 1929, and the official announcement of Harris' appointment today therefore was not surprising.

Bucky Harris.

Clark Griffith, president of the Washington club, is not in the habit of giving anything away, and as Harris has playing value, as well as managerial ability, the chief owner of the Senators no doubt received some cash in addition to Jackie Warner, infielder, in exchange for him. It is possible, too, that other Detroit players may be sent to the Senators.

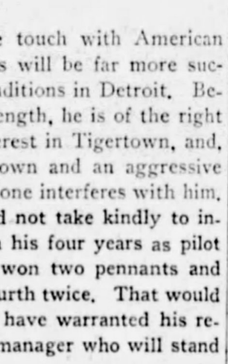
BASEBALL men who are in close touch with American League affairs believe that Harris will be far more successful than Moriarty in improving conditions in Detroit. Besides adding his individual playing strength, he is of the right type to liven things up and revive interest in Tigertown, and, as a manager, he has a mind of his own and an aggressive spirit that may bring good results if no one interferes with him.

Perhaps it was because Bucky did not take kindly to interference that Griffith let him go. In his four years as pilot in Washington, the one-time pit boy won two pennants and one world championship and finished fourth twice. That would appear to be a good enough record to have warranted his retention, but Griffith is said to prefer a manager who will stand for a whole lot of dictating.

IN other words, the kind of field leader that Griffith is said to desire is a "yes man." Griff himself gave up the active managership of the Washington club at the end of the 1920 season, but the fact that he has since had no fewer than four managers in George McBride, Clyde Milan, Donie Bush and Harris, is taken by many to mean that he has tried to run the team from behind the scenes.

Perhaps that is the reason why he has signed Walter Johnson as the Senators' new manager. The easy-going, unaggressive Johnson does not look like a good managerial prospect, but Griff's action in making him skipper may have been merely a box-office play—to please the fans of Washington, among whom Walter is immensely popular, and then to direct the club himself from the background.

WHILE on the subject of new major league managers for next season, it is learned that Art Fletcher, present coach of the Yanks and former Giant shortstop and Philly lader, is not the only possibility for the post that will be left vacant in Boston when Rogers Hornsby is sold to the Cubs. Bill Killefer, now coach of the Browns, and who formerly managed the Cubs and coached the Cardinals, is said to stand a good chance of being Hornsby's successor as boss of the Braves. Killefer and Hornsby are close frinds and went into a huddle several times in a quiet corner during the recent world series. If Hornsby's recommendation may be expected to carry any weight with the Brave owners, it will not be surprising if Killefer lands the job.



Bill Killefer.

SOME fighters have lofty ideas as to the value of their services. From all reports, Baby Joe Gans, Negro boxer, now operating in New York, received only an average fistic fee when he met Cuddy DeMarco in the East recently, but when Manager John L. Hernon, of the Motor Square Club, asked for Gans' terms for a return bout with DeMarco here on October 29, he received this reply from Larney Lichtenstein, Baby Joe's manager:

"Guarantee of $1,500, with privilege of 33 1-3 per cent of gross receipts, and transportation for three from New York to Pittsburgh and return." Manager Hernon dropped the proposed match right there, with the observation that Lichtenstein, in demanding one-third of the house, must have thought the

COURSE WILL BE TEST

By VERN SWARTSFAGER.

ALLEGHENY COUNTY golfers have been puzzled for some time regarding the new county links being constructed in the North and South parks. Misinterpretation of the motives, means and general intelligence of the man most directly concerned, Director of County Parks Paul B. Riis, has caused no end of anxiety in the ranks of public links golfers in this vicinity. Even we have been rather concerned in the matter.

It is with confidence, and a strong conviction in the ability and constructive genius of Director Riis, that we can postively say at this time that golfers of Allegheny County need not worry for fear of not having the type of golf course they most desire in the South county parks.

LAYOUT TO BE SAFE

It was our pleasure to go over every inch of the layout. The reaction is most favorable; we truly believe it will be one of the finest public golf courses in the United States when completed and quite worthy of National championship competition. It will be a sporty course, with a variety of holes calling for real golf through the green, and it will test the skill of the low as well as the high handicap player. Safety to players has been uppermost in the mind of the county official, while expedition of play also has been given a prominent place in his thoughts.

In the nutshell, Director Riis let the cat out of the bag when he said that he has aimed to present a municipal links wherein one is given a variety of shots, where the dub golfer can keep moving without tying up the entire course, where a person's safety from physical injury, not uncommon on free courses, is placed at a minimum, where the greatest number of players may compete in the shortest space of time and where the old as well as the young may play without finding the actual walking of the course too stiff physical exercise.

He has taken the topography of the South Park grounds and followed the general contour of every hillside, valley and plateau and worked into them a beautiful, natural layout that will be pleasing to the eye and not grating on the nerves. His consideration for every type of player is easily noted. Not only does he form his fairways in general blend with the landscape, but his greens as well; if there is an artificial effect on any one upon their completion, we'll lose a bet.

GREENS SUPERB

And speaking of the greens, we'll vouch there are few better in all of Western Pennsylvania, for size, general terrain, contour and turf. We did not see a bit of turf on any one of them, yet we are convinced Director Riis is thorough enough to keep his word when he nonchalantly admits "the turf is the least of my worries."

Riis' idea in large-surfaced greens is for the protection of the grass itself as well as to offer the golfer a change of pace almost daily. He expects to shift the holes on every green at least five times the week, and possibly twice each Saturday and Sunday during the height of the season, when crowds of up to

SPEAKING OF SPORTS by HARRY KECK Sports Editor

IT will not be a rival football team that Carnegie Tech will be combatting when it steps out against Wash-Jeff at Forbes Field tomorrow afternoon. My, no. Not an eleven, but a Jinx, spelled with a capital J.

And how those Tech boys would like to smear a nice, fat, juicy walloping all over the Wash and Jeff boys, to match the 6-0 and only victory they ever have turned in against the Presidents. That lone triumph came eight years ago, on a sea of mud that was Tech's home field in the old Skibo bowl. It was a kicking duel all the way with neither team able to gain in the heavy underfooting and Tech finally blocking a kick near the W. & J. goal and recovering the ball over the goal line.

Frequently in the last several years, Tech has loomed as a favorite to defeat W. & J., but always something has happened to spill the beans, and two ties and a string of defeats have been the Tartans' lot since they achieved that victory in 1920. It has got so that no one blames anything but the aforementioned jinx and, although Tech looks like a sure thing to sock the Presidents tomorrow, any other result will not come as a surprise.

COACH STEFFEN himself craves a victory over W. & J. above a triumph over Pitt. He makes no bones about that. At the annual banquet at the end of the season last year, he confessed that he had stretched a point by asking his athletes to go out and win for him against W. & J.

"I'll never again ask any team to win for me," he declared. "Those boys went out and fought their heads off. They gave more than I had a right to ask them to give and all we could get was a 19-6 defeat. They knew how keen I was to win, and what an effort they made! Perhaps next year will be our year. But I'll not ask the boys to win for me."

A strange spectacle will be presented at Columbus tomorrow in the Michigan-Ohio State game when, for the first time in years, a Wolverine eleven will enter a battle with the Buckeyes the underdog in the estimation of football men. There is a reason. Michigan has been beaten by Ohio Wesleyan and Indiana and appears to be in for the leanest sort of a season. In 24 meetings between the two old Big Ten rivals, Ohio State has won only three games and tied one and has scored a total of 84 points against 487. In only 10 of the

WARNER GOES TO NATS

DETROIT, Oct. 19.—(AP.)—Appointment of Stanley (Bucky) Harris as manager of the Detroit American League baseball team was announced today by Frank J. Navin, president of the local club.

Harris, who led the Washington American League team to two pennants and a world championship title, succeeds George Moriarty, whose resignation was announced this week.

The length of the Harris contract and its financial terms were withheld.

Part of the negotiations that bring Harris to Detroit involved the transfer of Jackie Warner, Detroit infielder, to the Washington club. Harris said he would be in uniform daily but would play on the Tiger team only in emergencies.

Harris' selection to succeed Moriarty was forecast almost with the close of the major league season this year, when he came to Detroit for a conference with President Navin. At that time neither Navin nor Harris would discuss the conference.

The rumors of Harris' selection were given added weight with announcement that Walter Johnson would take over the reins at Washington, followed shortly afterward by Moriarty's resignation.

Criticism of Moriarty's management of the Tigers began early in the present season, his second as leader of the team of which several years ago he was third baseman. In his resignation Moriarty blamed "unfavorable circumstances" for the poor showing of the Tigers. He did not attempt to explain what he meant by the phrase, but added that his experience had taught him to "accept the reverses of baseball with the same spirit that accompanies success."

The Detroit team finished fourth and sixth in the league standing under Moriarty's leadership in 1927 and 1928.

ALLEN QUITS ST. PAUL

ST. PAUL, Minn., Oct. 19.—(AP.)—Resignation of Nick Allen, manager of the St. Paul baseball club of the American Association, was announced today by President R. J. Connery. Allen, who has been manager of the Saints since 1924, said he expected to be connected with some Major League club next season.

Connery said that he has not selected a successor to Allen. The former Saints manager has several offers to join Major League clubs as coach, but he said that he will not accept any of them until he is certain he will not be asked to pilot one of the big league teams.

Yost Says He's Director, Not Grid Coach

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Oct. 19.—(AP.)—Fielding H. Yost, in denying rumors he contemplated leaving the University of Michigan, yesterday took occasion to explain his official connection with the institution, regarding which he indicated there appeared to be much confusion.

Yost explained that he has not been employed as coach of football since 1921, when his contract was cancelled and he became director of intercollegiate athletics and a member of the faculty.

METHODISTS CRIPPLED FOR PITT

By JESS CARVER.

In these days of recklessness on the part of football coaches as they sing the praises of their elevens to the benefit of the "gate" and the detriment of advance alibis, it is refreshing to receive a "bear" story. Such a yarn has been received from Meadville, the home of Mel Merritt and his Allegheny College Methodists, who will afford the opposition for the dangerous Pitt Panther here tomorrow.

No fewer than five of Coach Merritt's varsity gridders, according to the word from Meadville, will be out of action against Pitt. Capt. Slaven, end, is nursing a sprained ankle and is slated to sit on the sidelines on the morrow. Big Jack Lyden, a tackle, broke his collar bone in the Westminster struggle and is out for the season. Ronald McKay, rated a clever quarterback, has a broken mitt and cannot play against Pitt, so the story reads.

CENTER INJURED

Art Koeniger, who was developing into a fine center, will be out of action because of a leg injury. It seems that the entire Dartmouth team held a thuse on Art's shank last week and so scrambled the muscles and ligaments that Art has been rendered hors de combat for the week. And last, but not least, the report is out that Walter Berger, the Homestead luminary, will not be able to toss passes and carry the ball against Pitt because of a bad cold.

All this should make Coach Sutherland of Pitt rejoice. If all these babies are really out of the picture, Allegheny can hardly hope to make the going as tough for Pitt as it did for Dartmouth. Of course, Mr. Berger may take something for his cold and Mr. Koeniger's injured prop may respond to heroic treatment and one or two other of the crippled ones may undergo sudden and startling cures. At least, it is a sure bet that none of the five have made other dates for tomorrow afternoon.

Pitt is ready for Allegheny, weak or strong. The Panthers have gone through a tough week of drill.

FLETCHER MAY LEAD BRAVES

By CHARLES J. DOYLE.

"WHO will be the next manager of the Braves?" The Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph learned today from a very reliable source that Art Fletcher, former Philly pilot and present coach of the World Champion Yankees, has been offered the job.

The report that the Braves would insist on the acquisition of Outfielder Hazen Cuyler former Pirate, and Catcher Leo Hartnett in the deal now pending whereby the Cubs hope to acquire Rogers Hornsby, will not be given much credence among baseball men.

Manager Joe McCarthy would hardly part with the two players who played the big part in keeping the Bears in the National League race.

If Cuyler moved to Boston he probably would advance to the management of the Braves. It is a fact that Hazen was considered as possible manager of the club a couple of years ago when two factions of the ownership were in apparent controversy.

Boston men who were striving to get control of the team leaned toward Cuyler, it is said, but the faction that favored the then Pittsburgh outfielder lost out in their aim to establish control.

Chillysauce

THE Cubs, provided they land Hornsby, are almost sure to be flag contenders for next season, yet the infield would not be up to Joe McCarthy's hopes. Another infielder with punch and speed, preferably a southpaw batter, would just about set the Bears off as the best club in the league.

The Bruins went through this year's terrific race with one left-hand batsman—Lefty Grimm. In Wrigley Field this lopsided front was held as an asset, as it is reliably reported that a lefthand hitter finds the background in Chicago very difficult for consistent hitting. In any event, the Cubs were wildcats on their home grounds.

ANOTHER fine right-hand batter has been added to this right-hand-hitting club in the person of Danny Taylor, of West Newton, who starred again for the Memphis club of the Southern Association. Danny, last April, showed the Pittsburgh players enough stuff to make them think he was a star in several departments of the game. The Dodgers, it seems, had a claim on his services, but through alleged politics of the sport, Danny was sent back to Memphis. The suspicion was that the Dodgers "covered up" Taylor so that another major league team could not draft him from Memphis.

Well, anyhow, Danny will be around for contest for an outfield berth next season. To get a regular job he would have to replace Cuyler, Stephenson or Wilson. Cuyler is one of the game's greatest outfielders, a topnotch base runner, and when he is in his stride, something like a .325 batter. Stephenson hits even better, but he is not in Ki's class as a fielder. Wilson has slipped a bit in his defensive strength, but he continues to be a fine hitter—one of the home-run kings of the game.

THE Braves doubtless are barking up the wrong tree if they think Joe McCarthy will give over some of his lumberjacks to land the Rajah. Joe might part with one clever performer, but the talk of a flock of stars going to Boston is more or less poppy-cock.

Hornsby's terrific punch would help the Cubs, but the Rajah has his limitations in other ways. As a second-sacker, he is not in the same class as Fritz, he having a pronounced weakness on lofts hit at his back and on ground balls on his right. Moreover, he was somewhat of a "bust" when he tried to play the shortfield.

AND Hornsby might be hard to handle on certain ball teams. McCarthy, however, is a master at handling the various personalities that get into the diamond sport. To begin with, the kingpin batter is not so popular with his own players in Boston. As a member of the Giants he also seemed to be out of step with certain stars. But McGraw was able to handle him and McCarthy probably would have the same success.

IRISH GORGAS STILL ALIVE

IRISH GORGAS, former middleweight boxer of Lawrenceville, denies that he is dead.

About six weeks ago, Irish's friends informed the newspaper offices that Irish had been the victim of a fatal accident while at work. A checkup confirmed the report and obituary notices on Irish appeared in the newspapers. Irish has read them, got quite a kick out of them and now announces that he still is here in the flesh and will go into training to take on anybody who doesn't believe it.

"The report of my death has greatly embarrassed me in many ways," was Georgas' laconic explanation in asking that a denial be printed. He admitted he had been severely injured at work and had been unconscious in a hospital for several days, hovering between life and death and only recently was discharged from the hospital, but insisted he is far from being dead.

"This is not the first time I have been reported dead," Gorgas said. "About 10 years ago, when Irish O'Donnell died, he was confused with me. Now I suppose I have only seven lives to live."

Irish boxed the late Harry Greb and a number of other prominent middleweight boxers in his time, and as recently as a year ago appeared in a smoker bout in Lawrenceville. He is in his late thirties.

Joe Glick and Hubert Gilis, the Belgian, meet in a 10-round bout in Detroit tonight.

Speaking Of Sports

24 games has Michigan failed to whitewash Ohio State and Ohio's three victories came in a bunch in 1919, '20 and '21, when it had its best teams. Last year Ohio lost, 21-0, and the year before that it rolled up its greatest total of points against Michigan, 16, but was beaten by one point. The 1910 team tied Michigan, 3-3. The teams first met in 1897.

PENN and Penn State meet at Franklin Field, Philadelphia, tomorrow in a battle of wide importance, and, with State beaten, 6-0, by Bucknell last Saturday, while Penn was piling up 10 touchdowns to win, 67-0, over Swarthmore, the Quakers are considered fairly certain of victory. However, it would be well not to count the chickens before they are hatched, for last year State also was downed by Bucknell, 13-7, but came back to hand Penn a surprising 20-0 setback in a remarkable reversal of form.

Having been held to a scoreless tie by Coach Greasy Neale's Virginia eleven last Saturday, Princeton is going back to the use of the huddle system instead of having the quarterback call the signals. Princeton, under Coach Bill Roper, was one of the first major elevens to adopt the use of the huddle and created some talk by dropping it at the start of the recent campaign. It is quite a feather in the cap of Neale, former Marietta, West Virginia Wesleyan and Washington and major league outfielder, to force the Tigers to change their minds. The failure of Princeton to score against Virginia came as quite a shock after Roper's men had turned in a 50-0 victory over Vermont the week before.

By JAMES J. LONG

Motor Square Club wanted to hold the show as a sort of benefit affair for Gans.

LOCAL fight fans, on account of the exhorbitant terms of an out-of-town fighter, are therefore deprived of a match that promised to be one of the best of the early season here.

Where a fighter who is not a champion gets a license to demand one-third of the receipts is not clear to Pittsburgh boxing men. "A club probably would find itself in the hole after paying out 60 per cent or more for the main bout alone," said one.

SUCH conditions often keep Queensberry devotees from seeing a high-class outsider in action against a worthy opponent. The club has only two chances to escape a loss. One is to hire a cheap and inferior man to meet the high-priced imported fighter, and the other is to boost the prices. In either case, the fans get the worst of it. The day may not be far distant when the promoters of the state or country will be driven to forming an organization to make fighters accept reasonable terms as a measure of protection for the clubs and their patrons.

Benny Leonard.

BENNY LEONARD'S arrival here today will mark the beginning of hockey activities for the season. Training will be started next Thursday and from then on there will be no letup until the Pirates are ready for their first game on November 15.

Leonard will send to each of his players a copy of the changed rule to prevent stalling, which reads as follows:

"The puck must at all times be kept in motion while in play. A side in possession of the puck in its own defense area (i. e. the area between the end of the rink and the line marked across the ice 60 feet out from the line of the defended goal), shall always endeavor to advance the puck toward the opposing goal, except if it shall be prevented from so doing by players of the opposing side. A player beyond the defense area shall not pass it back into his defense area for the purpose of delaying the game.

"The penalty for infraction of this rule shall be a minor penalty to the last player to touch the puck. The puck shall then be faced at the spot at which the penalized player was given the penalty."

EVER since the days of Metoxen, Houser, the Pearces, Miller, Mt. Pleasant, Hudson, Thorpe and others at Carlisle, the Indian has been prominent in football. After Joe Guyon, John Levi starred in the college ranks and now comes another redskin to bid for fame in the person of Mayes McLain.

Mayes McLain.

McLain formerly played for Haskell Institute, and now is a member of the University of Iowa team. The brilliant manner in which he has started out, stamps him as a player of exceptional ability and even at this early stage he is being called an All-American possibility in Big Ten circles.

ONE of the leading Western critics, C. E. McBride, of Kansas City, says McLain was the whole works offensively against Chicago last Saturday and rates him one of the really great football players of recent years. McBride says that McLain's exhibition Saturday recalled to him the Indian's wonderful play against Charley Moran's Bucknell College eleven in the dedicatory game of the Haskell stadium two years ago, when, on an end skirt, he was tackled, dropped the ball, but keeping his feet, continued on his way, reached over for the bounding oval, scooped it up and maintained his pace without loss of stride.

Local Gridders Ready

They've been drilled on the defense against the pass and on its handling. No radical changes are planned in the lineup, though if possible, Coach Sutherland will rest up Capt. Alex Fox, Ruby Dimeolo, Honey Guarino and Toby Uansa. Fox has a hand which he has carried in a cast for a week. A little rest will do the injured member a world of good.

TECH ON EDGE

The 40,000 or so fans who jam their way into Forbes Field tomorrow to see Tech and Wash-Jeff in the 1928 renewal of their annual classic are pretty certain to see a tough ball game. The Tartan eleven is in good trim, despite the certain absence from the lineup of one or two stars. Len Schnupp will hardly be fit for duty as his injured shoulder is not yet healed. Saul Meilziner is anxious to go again, but it is hardly likely that the Tech coaches will use the big fellow for long. Yarina is slated to start at guard and Dresher at center.

The backfield situation remains about the same. Harpster, Letgetter and Karcis are certain to start. Moorehead seems to be the most likely bet for the fourth position.

The Presidents, determined to recover all the ground that was lost when the Dukes trimmed 'em last week, will throw a light and inexperienced team against the Tartans, one that will battle grimly to hold in check the heavier and better bolstered Tartan machine.

Tech had fairly heavy drill yesterday. Today the squad will be given a light workout which will be confined mostly to signal drill.

DUKES CRIPPLED

The Dukes, with a somewhat crippled lineup but with a host of replacements at hand which were barred from competing in the Wash-Jeff game because of the freshman rule, tapered off their drill for the game with Loyola University with a snappy drill yesterday and will hold a light warming-up session today.

Doggo Burns, halfback and Capt. Buff Donnelli will not be in the starting lineup tomorrow. Burns will not even be in uniform, and unless it is absolutely necessary, the Red and Blue captain will be kept safe on the bench through the afternoon. Some of the other boys who are more or less crippled will also to lifted and rested unless Loyola proves to be too tough.

A last minute change of plans on the part of Coach Layden is expected to result in Turk's replacing Burns at halfback and Kovalcheck filling in at fullback in the place of the battered Donelli. Ganzy Benedict, who has spent a great part of the week searching for a banana cake which mysteriously disappeared from under his bunk, and the clever Joe McCarthy will complete the backfield lineup.

Graduate Manager of Athletics Holohan has completed arrangements for a good crowd. He expects his Dukes to perform before at least 5,000—almost capacity for the Duke field.

HEAVY BATTLE POSTPONED

NEW YORK, Oct. 19.—(AP.)—The 10-round match between Paulino Uzcudun, Spanish heavyweight, and Big Boy Peterson, of Minneapolis, at Ebbets Field, was postponed last night because of rain. The match will be staged tonight, weather permitting.

Newark Gets Sprague Cleghorn

LANGLEY, SOUTH HILLS COP SWIMMING MEETS

Langley senior girls visited the Perry pool yesterday afternoon and took home a 31-24 victory. Four first places and four second places went to Langley with Miss Moore getting high score honors by her first in the back stroke and seconds in the free style and the dives.

South Hills seniors registered their fifth straight win in the high school girls' swimming league by defeating Carrick seniors, 38-19 in the latter's pool. The Carrick juniors reversed matters by taking over the visitors, 33-21.

TROUT ARE PLENTIFUL IN MERCER CO. STREAMS

SHARON, Pa., Oct. 19.—Four thousand trout, which were placed early last summer in the first fish nurseries to be built in Mercer county, were recently planted in the streams. The trout were allowed to grow from two inches to between five and seven before they were removed. The nurseries were erected by the Shenango Valley Chapter, Izaak Walton League of America. It is probable that more troughs will be built next spring to carry the work on at a greater scale.

HOLE IN NOTHING

LONDON, Oct. 19.—A hole in nothing has been made by A. Reeve on the Wanstead Club's course here. Reeve's handicap was 15 and he was in a bogey competition. At the 213-yard fourth he received one stroke. Much to his surprise, he downed his tee shot—thus winning the hole in nothing.

TITLE FOES MEET

GREENSBURG, Pa., Oct. 19.—Two strong W. P. I. A. L. contenders for the Syracuse football cup clash tomorrow when Greensburg and Charleroi High schools meet on Offut field here. Charleroi has been undefeated so far while Greensburg has been tied in one contest by Mt. Pleasant.

MID-ATLANTIC CITIES KEEP FRANCHISES

Certain franchises may be taken over by new interests, but they will not be transferred to cities other than those in which they were exercised last season, Middle Atlantic League moguls, meeting at the Hotel Henry here last night to lay plans for the 1929 campaign, announced.

The Cumberland franchise is to be offered to the business men of that city at a meeting to be held there in January, and the Clarksburg franchise is to be financed by the Chamber of Commerce and other civic organizations. The lineup of clubs, however, will be the same as it was in 1928.

Three cities have entered bids for any franchise that might be for sale, according to President Elmer Dailey.

SOUTH HILLS TIES PERRY

Perry High School and South Hills High School battled grimly to a 6-all deadlock on the Oliver High School field yesterday afternoon in a contest for supremacy in Section II of the City Senior League. The edge of the battle favored Perry, which, with their two defeats to one, permitted them to retain their loop lead. Davis and Brown scored the touchdowns.

In other games Schenley High literally swamped South, 30 to 0, Schauer playing particularly brilliant football, in a Section I embroglio, while in a non-league clash Carrick took over St. Mary's, 19 to 0. The lineups:

THIEF IN SEWICKLEY DELAYS KOENIGS' TRIP

Mark Koenig, shortstop of the World Champion Yankees, and his father, on their way to California, broke into the police news at Sewickley yesterday. Stopping the car in front of a store to purchase tobacco, the elder Koenig proffered a large bill in payment, which the storekeeper couldn't change. Leaving the bill on the counter to return to the car to ask his son for a dime, Koenig's father returned to the store to find the bill missing.

It was discovered that John Caldwell, a Negro, had entered the store during the interim and had lifted the bill. He was overtaken, however, and the bill recovered. The Koenigs continued on their way after declining to prosecute.

South Park Course Good

700 are expected to appear at the first tee.

The highest knoll on the grounds has been selected for the clubhouse, which won't be just exactly a million-dollar affair—but (and you may lay to this), it will be in artistic keeping with the general landscape, and with sufficient facilities to take care of the great demand both now and in the future—"now" meaning next year, or as soon as the course is opened. The clubhouse will overlook all except five or six holes.

It is not going to be a short course. Its yardage, 6,495 feet, is every inch a modern layout, and the boys will certainly have to learn how to use their brassies—an almost unknown club at Schenley Park. Going out is 3,280 yards, and returning the trek is 3,215 yards, each nine being a 36 par for a total of 72. And there will be few golfers equal to the task of taking the Old Man over on the South County Parks links, if you can believe that.

MUST BUY PROPERTY

Let us go over the course briefly. The first hole is only partially constructed, the Director being delayed inasmuch as certain necessary property, now privately-owned, is not yet available. The approach to the putting surface and the green, however, are well under way. It is a splendid start—400 yards, par 4, a slight dog-leg to the right, following the level of the land.

The second, 390 yards, par 4, is straight ahead, down the side of a hill, with a gradual rise to the green. It may be changed to a slight dog-leg, but it appears good as it is. The third is 475 yards, par 4 and it runs down hill from the tee, dog-legging only slightly to the left as it runs out of the hollow toward the elevated green. Number four, 385 yards, a par 4, is a fine drive and iron, calling for a careful second shot. It also runs down hill from the tee, and rises slowly green-ward.

The fifth stretches out 460 yards and is the first par 5 encountered. It shoots straight down rather steeply, turns only slightly to the right, and then gradually advances on a slight grade to the putting surface.

And there you have one of the finest get-aways on a golf course in any district in the country for handling large crowds—with five long starting holes, there will be little delay in starting play.

Then the sixth. Its tee has been purposely placed more than 200 yards from the fifth green in order to stall the players for time while those in front of them finish up on that 220-yard par 4 hole. It is up hill, but the rise is almost imperceptible. We'll lay a bet that many a golfer is going to misjudge that shot from the tee, it being a one-shot hole, and a beauty.

ONLY PARALLEL HOLES

The seventh returns toward the sixth tee on the far side on fairway a little higher. Its green almost hooks up with the fifth, although in no way does one interfere with the other. Sixth and seventh, by the way, are the only holes one might say were really parallel on the entire course, and they do not, because of plenty of space between and wide fairways, conflict. The seventh is 350 yards and all down hill (yet it appears little longer than the 220-yard sixth) and some of the golfers are going to get a big surprise. It is straight-away.

From there a short walk to another short hole—said walk again being applied against time. It is a lake hole, 160 yards—and very likable. The lake is to be enhanced with several natural waterfalls. The green is set in the distant hillside and has a 160-foot gateway.

The ninth is a good two-shot hole, being 440 yards and a par 4, winding up directly in front of the clubhouse. The fairway is undulating.

TENTH DOG-LEGGED

Starting homeward, one hits a severe dog-leg on the 480-yard, par 5, tenth, yet the green is constantly in view from the tee. It is to be well bunkered and trapped right at the turn in order to penalize those who fail to make good their "take-a-chance."

Part of the woodland is to be cut away to make the eleventh curve a little bit to the right as it wends its way on a gradual slope for 410 yards to a spacious green.

The twelfth, 340 yards, par 4, and a distant dog-leg to the left, caused no amount of worrying, but it has finally been developed into a fine hole. It will rather help the dub, with his slice, and cause alarm to the strong-armed good player if he hooks. It is rather narrow fairway, sloping off to the left and curving the same way. A woodland menaces on the left, as well. The seventeenth fairway barely meets it for a few yards on the right, but this is quite unavoidable. The green lies atop a hill.

THIRTEENTH BEAUTY

Thirteen will be a popular hole, being 245 yards downhill to the green. The tee will be high, looking over a steep decline which gradually rolls off smoothly to the putting surface. Woods are on the left and tough rough on the right. Two ditches must be filled in to make the hole a good one, which will require a lot of work.

Fourteen, another cause for much pondering, is rather an ordinary hole, making the best of circumstances, rolling 405 yards to the green; it is, of course, par 4.

There will be a little tie-up on the 140-yard fifteenth, but it will be well worth it. The green is set back in the side of a hill, with an elevated half-circle promonetory facing the tee. It will be island-type, and a pitch-shot requiring accuracy.

The sixteenth, 335 yards, par 4, is nothing to brag about either, although it is not a really bad hole. It rises slightly uphill, and then eases on to the green, turning only slightly to the left.

Not a new type of hole altogether, yet one unusual to this immediate district is the reverse dog-legged seventeenth, 510 yards, par 5, and rolling up the side of a hill to the left before it swerves to the right from its crest. Despite its serpentine qualities, the green is in plain view from the tee.

FINISH AT CLUBHOUSE

The eighteenth, still indefinite as to its tee, most likely will be a dog-leg to the right from in between the tenth and eleventh fairways, just beyond the elevated seventeenth green. It runs down hill, turns and then travels upward to the green in front of the clubhouse. It will be when completed, between 350 and 400 yards, although it is figured in at this time on the first yardage.

That's the course briefly. Hills are being shaved down, greens being built up, hollows eliminated, beds of solid rock excavated in order to bring about this ideal course wherein not a single hole is blind from tee to green. Nor will a roadway cross the course.

There is much activity. The layout; should be completed by spring, but it seems rather foolish to open it immediately unless everything was absolutely ready. If Riis uses Kocas bent, as he rather plans, this may be true to the word.

Riis is using county materials, county implements and county workmen to do his job, which makes its cost minimum.

He is to be congratulated.

John Jay Burke, city manager of the county parks, an executive committeeman of the Public Links Section, U. S. G. A., accompanied Director Riis and newspapermen on the tour of inspection. He was well pleased with the prospects for municipal link golfers, whose welfare he has always had close to his heart.

Roach Goes to Rangers

NEW YORK, Oct. 19.—(AP.)—One of the greatest goal tenders in professional hockey, John Roach, of the Toronto Maple Leafs, has been traded to the New York Rangers for Goalie Lorne Chabot and a cash consideration of about $10,000, adding a final buiwark to the great strength of the world champs.

The acquisition of Roach to replace Chabot followed the Rangers' unsuccessful attempt to land Dave Trottier, crack center of the Canadian Olympic champs.

JOHNNY CAREY BEATS BEATTY IN TUBE CITY

Johnny Carey of Erie won the decision over Allen Beatty of McKeesport in the 10-round windup at the Majestic Club, McKeesport, last night. It was one of the finest exhibitions presented in the Tube City ring in many a day. Carey won by a shade.

The semi-final, likewise, was full of fireworks. Jackie Rodgers apparently sent a low blow to the body of Harry Mayberry in the first round of their bout, although the referee ignored all protests and counted eight before Mayberry was able to continue. Two more seemingly low blows followed, and likewise were ignored. Despite Rodgers' work, Mayberry got the decision.

In the preliminaries, Dominick Profio knocked out Irish Tommy Harris in the fifth stanza of their bout, sending him to the floor three times before he finally stopped him.

Mike Hogan outpointed Joe Ribnicky of Donora in the six-round opener. It was a hard-fought bout.

Johnny Ryan, of Erie, and Davey Adelman, of Philadelphia, 120-pounders, have been matched for the 10-round main bout at the McKeesport Club next Thursday night.

NORTH SIDE A. C. PUTS ON SIX AMATEUR BOUTS

North Side A. C. staged an open amateur boxing show last night at German Masonic Hall, putting on six bouts.

Cowboy De Luca, Willow Club, won over Joe Blaner, North Side A. C., in three rounds. Mannie Letsch, Willow Club, and Mike Koppin, North Side A. C., staged a fast bout, Letsch gaining the verdict in four rounds. Robert McDowell, Willow Club, won from Bob Smoller, North Side A. C., in three rounds. Paul Ballen, North Side A. C., and Sam Paris, Willow Club, opened the show with a fast four-round battle, Balien getting the verdict.

Herbert Evans, Twenty-fifth Ward A. C., won from August Moore, North Side A. C., in three rounds.

Fight Results

At McKeesport—Johnny Carey defeated Allen Beatty, 10 rounds; Harry Mayberry defeated Jackie Rodgers, 10 rounds; Dominick Profio knocked out Irish Tommy Harris, 5 rounds; Mike Hogan defeated Joe Ribnicky, 6 rounds.

At Passaic, N. J.—Battling Levinsy defeated Pietro Corri, 8 rounds.

AWAIT FORMER CHAMPS' DEBUT

By TOM BIRKS.

THOROUGHLY convalescent from his recent sickness Manager Nic Balsarini, of the former national amateur champion Heidelberg soccer eleven, talked at length of the plans for the national amateur cracks this season last evening. Balsarini is showing the effects of his sickness, but that did not stop him from growing enthusiastic regarding the makeup of the Green and Gold booters when they open Sunday at Heidelberg against the McKeesport National Tube in the American League. Critics well posted with soccer material feel that Heidelberg will have the greatest club that ever wore the famous colors, and that it is not idle talk, for the material already signed fills every position on the squad and gives plenty of reserve strength for the attacking and defending part of the squad.

Courtley has returned to his first love at Dunlevy, so that means young Gerald Fagan, the Chartiers Valley star, will play between the sticks. Andy Strachan has returned to the club, and will partner Joe Fagan, Dante Villani, who, the writer feels, is greatest young American-born fullback playing today, will probably be found in the middle line. There we find Howard Mangus, Duke Stenzel and Berky Jones, Pittsburgh's only soccer Olympic player. And with all the material named, the players left of the forward line include Bill O'Donnell, Kusis, whom the writer feels is the fastest wing in the country; McCosky, Fred Donnelli, Barrafoldi, Chappel, and, last but not least, Buff Donnelli, Duquesne's gridiron captain, when the Dukes get through their collegiate schedule. And the first glimpse of the squad will be on Sunday. A great crowd is sure to be awaiting their return.

The two new members of the District League, after a real battle, will meet as opponents Saturday afternoon at Swissvale. The boys teamed up at Wednesday's session to get into the four-club loop, and now that the team work is finished, the boys will be out to do battle. Pittsburgh, in its friendly game last Saturday, tried Cusic at center forward, so it seems as though the Blue and White is not so keen about Moremen. It must be admitted Moremen does miss a lot of scoring chances his comrades make for him, and if Jimmy has started to slip, it is a sure bet Dolan will fill his shoes with someone else.

ENTER BUTLER RACE

BUTLER, Pa., Oct. 19—William (Shorty) Cantlon and Paul Bost, of Detroit, Mich., the last-named being the victor in the final 75-mile speed classic on the Bridgeville Board Speedway, are two of the latest entrants in the feature 75-mile and the consolation 25-mile gasoline derbies to be staged at the fair grounds here tomorrow afternoon, commencing at 2 o'clock.

"Seen in The Royal Enclosure" at Ascot

Style Authority

THE best dressed men of England are seen in the Royal Enclosure at Ascot—and that's where we first saw this Box Cloth Top Shoe.

In this fashionable group you meet the style leaders of the world—men who do things different and wear things different and are not afraid to express their preference and personality. And not the least important of this select set was the Prince of Wales himself who wore a Box Cloth Top shoe into the Royal Box.

Our next move was to find a bootmaker who made shoes for Royalty and we found Bartley. Bartley and Sons have been making shoes for more than 100 years in the same spot (493 Oxford St., London W.). They hold Royal Warrants of Appointment to His Majesty the King and to His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales.

We paid Bartley £5:10 ($26.50) for this grey English Box Cloth Top Boot trimmed with Russia Calf—and we bought 40 pairs so that we could show one of Bartley's original custom models with the Regal Reproduction side by side in every Regal Store in U.S.A.

The lasts are identical in both measurement and appearance and the design is exactly the same. The Upper Leather of Bartley's original is an Imported Calfskin tanned in Oisterwyk, Holland, and in the Regal Reproduction we are using the same identical tannage.

But Price isn't the only difference. Bartley's shoes are all made and sewn by hand. Our shoes are sewn by the same machine as practically all high priced American shoes. In Bartley's shop only four men handle the shoe from the time it is cut until it is finished. In our Factory about 150 different persons perform some operation on a Regal Shoe. BARTLEY AVERAGES ABOUT THREE PAIRS A DAY—IN OUR FACTORY WE MAKE MORE THAN THREE THOUSAND A DAY.

Pointers for Merchants; Chicago Better Looking.

—By B. C. FORBES—

CHICAGO, Oct. 19.

THE city's growth is the first impression which registers when one revisits Chicago. Civic improvements vie with improvements achieved by industry, finance, business. The lake front and other developments promise to entitle Chicago to call itself the city beautiful. The loop is undergoing transformation, architecturally and traffic-wise. Order is being wrought from former congestion and chaos.

Whatever civic and other shortcomings may afflict Chicago, the city assuredly is growing in attractiveness, in activity, in economic power—Chicago can boast of a $1,000,000,000 bank doing more business under one roof than any other bank in the world, and it also has the largest drygoods establishment in the world.

OPTIMISM is the keynote of the heads of great industrial, mercantile and transportation enterprises having their headquarters here. As in New York, the leading bankers view with misgivings the unprecedented ongoings in Wall Street. They are apprehensive over the final upshot. The gist of talks with these men will be given in a later column.

YESTERDAY a notable address was made at the retailers' luncheon of the Illinois Chamber of Commerce, now holding its annual session, by that conspicuously successful merchant, Edward A. Filene, of Boston. He greatly heartened independent merchants who are wor ied over the inroads of chain store competition. He told them how to fight back effectively.

Also, Mr. Filene, a deep student of economics, made observations of interest to every thoughtful employer in America.

Note these pithy sentences:

"Industry has begun to realize that it must produce consumers as well as products. From purely selfish reasons, therefore, modern business is forced to reduce costs and pass the major share of this saving to the consuming public in the form of higher wages and through lower retail prices. We must increase the purchasing power of the consumer's dollar so we can operate on a mass production basis.

"Mass production is the basis of American prosperity and cannot live without mass distribution. Both depend on low selling costs.

"The retailers' part in this program is to place orders in such quantities that these orders can be produced under the very great saving of mass production. This makes possible adequate profits while selling at lower prices. It is the same theory that has made the very great success of the Chevrolet and Ford cars, and the hundreds of articles sold through Woolworth's, the A. & P. stores and similar organizations.

"Industry cannot continue on a mass production scale if the saving it effects is lost through the doubling up of prices of many commodities between the factory and the consumer."

MR. FILENE'S specific advice to independent merchants included this:

"1—Advertise largely — courageously—the things that people want and will be helped by owning.

"2—Tell the exact truth in your advertisements, being sure to understate the good qualities of your products.

"3—Don't lie!

"4—If you don't sell great quantities by this method, then improve the value of what you are advertising until it is more surely the best value on the market.

"5—If you don't sell greater and greater quantities in this way, then advertise still more courageously."

HE advised merchants to organize or join buying or management association so as to give them buying power as strong as that of the chains, and he cited how this had been successfully done by drug stores.

Finally he visioned the coming of department store chains doing $1,000,000,000 or $2,000,000,000 business a year. "If department stores do not form chains, then chains will form department stores," he warned.

VERILY, we are entering a new day which demands new ways if we are to hold our place in the swiftly-moving procession.

SUGAR MARKET.

NEW YORK, Oct. 19.—The raw sugar market was quieter today and in absence of business prices were unchanged at 3.96c for spots duty paid. There were offerings at this level, and it was believed that store sugars could have obtained at concessions of 1-32c or on the basis of 3.95c.

The raw sugar futures market opened unchanged to 1 point lower under liquidation and European selling, promoted by the continued liberal offerings in the spot market. The demand was light with buying indifferent to be cautious, and prices moved further lower in the late forenoon and at midday were 1 to 2 points below the previous close.

In refined withdrawals were again of fair proportions, but there was no increase in new buying and prices were unchanged at 5.25 to 5.30c for fine granulated.

Mr. Mellon Discloses Our Debt to L'Enfant

In choosing "Developing the Nation's Capital" as the subject of his Founder's Day address Thursday, Secretary of the Treasury Andrew W. Mellon selected a theme of special appropriateness considering the scene of the delivery of his message. His words reviewed the progress that has been made in the supreme art aspirations of a young nation. They were uttered in a temple of art that represents a high development of the aims of our fathers to include beauty and order in the building of a capital city that would reflect the soul of the nation, its feelings and its ideals, and at the same time be comparable in dignity and expression to the capital cities of the Old World.

Mr. Mellon told about the beginning of the national capital, how it was to be developed according to an orderly plan made by Washington and L'Enfant, a young French engineer who served in the American Revolution. He related how progress was made slowly, leaving Washington a city of mixed magnificance and squalor. Greater progress was made after the city was given a territorial form of government, but the ideal is still far in the distance. He told about the careful study made at the beginning of the present century, with the result that the L'Enfant plan was readopted, and how now, 128 years after the removal of the capital to Washington, the idea then adopted for a city that would represent America in the terms of art and utility is still being followed.

Mr. Mellon has made us his debtors in calling to our attention the fact that a nation in which most of the people were clearing forests, grubbing stumps, wearing homespun and eating coarse food, had an art ideal. We have come a long way through mud roads and dark woods, in which lurked Indians, to reach cities in which are such magnificent structures as are to be seen in Washington and in that part of Pittsburgh in which the Carnegie Institution is part of a notable group.

As Mr. Mellon points out, we do progress, and he speaks hopefully of the work contemplated to carry nearer to completion the L'Enfant plan in Washington. As he is our neighbor, it pleases us to think that he is part of the agency of fulfillment, suited by inclination, taste and appreciation of beauty, with capacity for performance.

We know the value of orderly plan, seeing the wisdom of it reflected in a greater and more beautiful Pittsburgh, developed and developing.

Founder's Day Means An Inspiration to All

One of the significant "days" in the life of Pittsburgh is Founder's Day, commemorating the benefactions Andrew Carnegie bestowed upon the city and marking the opening of the International Exhibition of paintings in the Carnegie Art Galleries, one of the units of the great Carnegie Institution. Other parts of this cultural group include the museum, library, music hall and Carnegie Institute of Technology.

We take these things so much as a matter of course that it is beneficial to pause once a year to reflect upon their meaning. Founder's Day officially reaches its climax this year in the address of our distinguished fellow-townsman who serves the nation as one of its greatest secretaries of the treasury, Andrew W. Mellon.

Mr. Mellon, in joining those who have spoken here on Founder's Day, becomes one of a notable galaxy, a brilliant circle, in which Mr. Mellon's predecessor, last year, was President Coolidge. It is significant that a man like Mr. Mellon, who has achieved so much both in private and national endeavors, should be the public voice in bestowing honor upon Andrew Carnegie, among whose great achievements none stands higher than the establishment of the institution bearing his name.

Founder's Day passes, but that which was founded lives year after year, an inspiration to all, a fountain of knowl- culture and pleasure. Specifically just now it calls atten- f the public to the exhibition of pictures, which is to continue for several weeks. It is one of the world's important exhibitions of paintings.

Vote Strength of County Shows Power of People

With the largest registration of voters in history, 472,134, Allegheny county men and women will go to the polling places Tuesday, November 6, as a veritable army of citizens. Almost half million voters are going to decide questions of moment through the ideal arbitrament of democracy. There is an inspiration in the number and an assurance that however indifferent we may become at times to the duties of citizenship there always is in the background the mighty force of public will that can be aroused from slumber and made dynamic.

The total of voters is revealed in statistics on which the County Commissioners based the order, now placed, for the printing of official ballots. They show a registration of 183,773 in Pittsburgh; 21.880 in the three other cities of the county; 179,199 in the boroughs, and 87.272 in townships. In these figures is an illumination of how little of Allegheny county is rural and how great a proportion of the population is urban, with 384,852 registered voters living in the cities and boroughs. Even some of the townships are largely urban, Mt. Lebanon, Stowe, Penn and others.

Figures alone are a weighty argument for the adoption of constitutional amendment No. 14, permitting a Metropolitan charter for the consolidated city of Pittsburgh, embracing the entire county, but reserving to all of its units their entities and powers.

When Allegheny votes this year it will present a strength worthy of the great unity it really is.

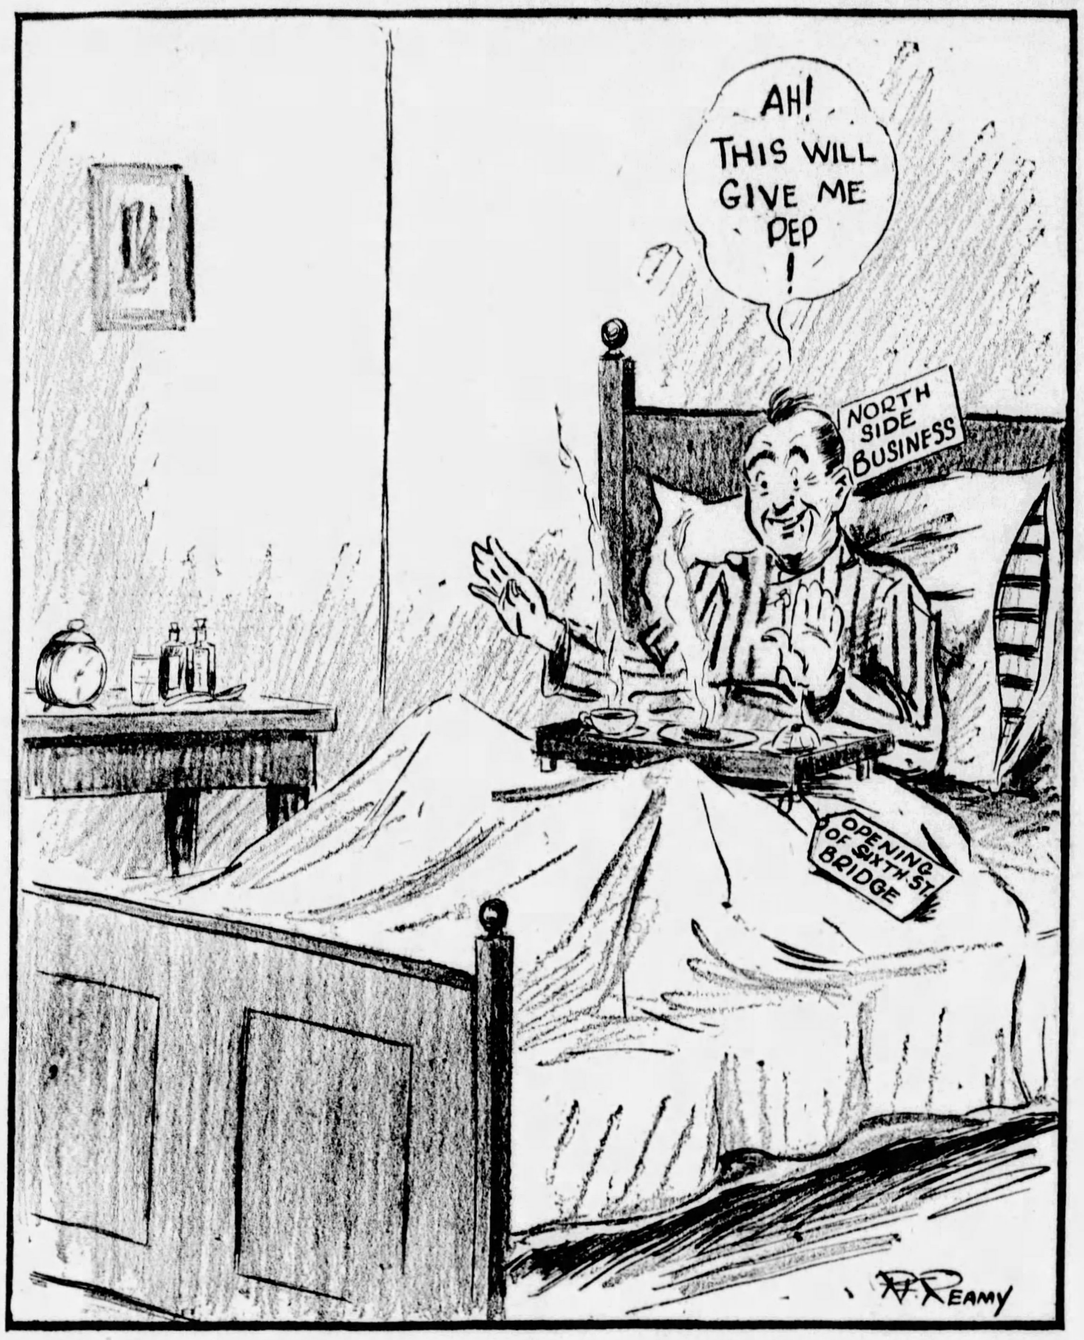
Help Our Boy Scouts, Who Ask For $100,000

Perhaps you are aware that the Allegheny Council of the Boy Scouts of America is conducting a campaign for $100,000, to be used to broaden the scope of its work. But you may have missed the idea that those behind the campaign are not working for themselves, but for our boys—your own boy, maybe. The endeavor to raise the fund mentioned continues until the end of this month, but it should be ended in a few days if the merit of the appeal is considered.

We all know the Boy Scouts. We know that this organization directs the natural inclinations and activities of boys into channels that mold character. Proper influences, in the main, result in a boy growing into a real man. If the environment be evil the result is reflected in a youth that must fight an uphill battle if he is to emerge a good and useful member of society. If you neglect the boy you shove your responsibility onto his shoulders. Often he bears it well, but do you think it is fair to give him that burden?

Help the boy. Give that $100,000 and give it quickly.

REAL NOURISHMENT AT LAST!



Garrett P. Serviss Says:

The Lunar Runaway

"Kindly explain why the moon does not rotate on its axis when all other planets do. To what original occurrence is this phenomenon due —M. Werbow, New York."

THE moon does rotate on its axis, but it appears not to rotate because it makes only one axial in going once around the earth, i. e. in a lunar month, so that it keeps always the same face toward the earth. What we have to account for is the slowing down of its rate of rotation, for it is probable that the moon once rotated much more rapidly. The explanation involves one of the most remarkable principles of action invoked in astronomy, viz. the effects of "tidal friction."

For a complete demonstration one must have recourse to abstruse mathematical physics, but the gist of the matter may be easily understood by a simple consideration of the forces concerned. It may be remarked that these forces are shortening the time of the earth's rotation also, but at so slow a rate that the calculated amount is only about one-thousandth of a second in a hundred years!

Let us first consider the effect of tidal friction on the rotation of the earth. The principal tide-producer is the attraction of the moon on the water of the oceans. The force that raises the tide is directed toward the moon. The moon travels around the earth once in about a month, but the earth in the meantime, rotates twenty-one times on its axis turning in the same direction in which the moon revolves around it. Owing to this the tide (being held in leash by the moon), sweeps westward over the earth, and inevitably a certain degree of friction occurs between the water and the solid crust. This friction is mainly manifested where the tidal waves encounter the shores of the continents.

But the moon has no oceans (though it may perhaps have had some in the remote past), and you may reasonably ask: "How can the moon have had its rotation almost destroyed by tidal friction while the earth is so very slightly affected by the same cause?"

To say nothing of the fact that the earth's attraction would have produced immensely greater tides upon the moon when, and if, it had oceans, than the moon could ever produce upon the earth, we have only to consider that when the moon was in a semi-solid state the tidal force strongly affected its whole mass and drew it into a slightly ellipsoidal form, the result being to give the earth's tidal attraction an increased mechanical advantage and so to hasten the destruction of the rotational momentum.

There is an "astronomical romance" associated with this subject, for calculation shows that, working backward, an epoch can be discerned when the moon was probably separated from the earth and then driven by the interplay of certain forces arising from tidal friction, step by step, to its present distance from the earth, its rotation being at the same time gradually slowed down. The same calculation carried forward from the present indicates that the earth's day will gradually grow longer, while the moon's distance will increase, and at last both earth and moon will each keep the same face always turned toward its companion. After that, avers the same mathematics, the terrestrial day will become actually longer than the month, whereupon the moon will begin to return to its mother earth and may once more rest in the maternal bosom—unless, as Jeffreys has calculated it, it is torn to pieces when it once more approaches its deserted parent and ends its career by surrounding the earth with a ring of meteors—a sort of crown, or garland, of filial repentence.

Making Headway

ON THE heels of the autogyro plane, with its promise of easy landings and increased safety, comes the successful test of an oil-burning motor offering a one-fourth increase in air cruising radius at reduced fuel cost.

But even that is dwarfed by the prospect, brought nearer by recent experiments, of a time when the motor power for flight will be picked out of the air.

In Chicago they are freezing ice cream, baking bread and running a street car by radio. Maneuvering of ships from shore by the same method was demonstrated years ago. Radio experts do not promise easly transmission of giant power by wireless, but you can never tell what the next surprise will be.

Avoid Routine Rut

WHY follow the same routine in your life day in and day out?

Certain things must be repeated day after day, but non-essentials may be varied with restful results.

It may be another way to the office or a meal outside for the home-keeper, different ways to use your leisure.

But in some way or other plan to avoid monotony.

It is a bad thing to make of your life a humdrum existence.

To wake up in the morning and see nothing ahead but the same uneventful routine, the same drab program of daily living, is what puts some folk in the asylum.

Of course, it takes thinking to arrange your day and put into it variety.

It takes interest to think up new ways of doing things.

But if you wish to have life worth while, if you wish to enjoy your family and friends, you must do a little personal headwork to keep you from colorless following of the line of least resistance.

If you have a husband get yourself into something that will give diversity of thought and keep his interest.

Don't allow yourself to grow stale when there are so many little ways of getting a kick out of living.

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELS

Radio

WHAT singing joys come trooping here
Along the trackless air,
In harmonies serene and clear
To charm away our care!

The radio's rare magic brings
New beauty to the days
As on its swift and viewless wings
It cheers once-lonely ways.

Yet sweeter than the voice of song
In tender melodies
It is to know that round us throng
A thousand harmonies!

Through all the silent centuries
This marvel lay unguessed,
But in it now man faintly sees
Enfolding Love expressed!

Great Passages from the Bible

"All Is Vanity"

(Ecclesiastes 1: 2-18)

VANITY of vanities, saith the Preacher, vanity of vanities; all is vanity.

What profit hath a man of all his labour which he taketh under the sun?

One generation passeth away, and another generation cometh: but the earth abideth for ever.

The sun also ariseth, and the sun goeth down, and hasteth to his place where he arose.

The wind goeth toward the south, and turneth about unto the north; it whirleth about continually, and the wind returneth again according to his circuits.

All the rivers run into the sea; yet the sea is not full; unto the place from whence the rivers come, thither they return again.

All things are full of labour; man cannot utter it: the eye is not satisfied with seeing, nor the ear filled with hearing.

The thing that hath been, it is that which shall be; and that which is done is that which shall be done: and there is no new thing under the sun.

Is there any thing whereof it may be said, See, this is new? it hath been already of old time, which was before us.

There is no remembrance of former things; neither shall there be any remembrance of things that are to come with those that shall come after.

I the Preacher was king over Israel in Jerusalem.

And I gave my heart to seek and search out by wisdom concerning all things that are done under heaven: this sore travail hath God given to the sons of man to be exercised therewith.

I have seen all the works that are done under the sun; and, behold, all is vanity and vexation of spirit.

That which is crooked cannot be made straight: and that which is wanting cannot be numbered.

I communed with mine own heart, saying, Lo, I am come to great estate, and have gotten more vision than all they that have been before me in Jerusalem: yea, my heart had great experience of wisdom and knowledge.

And I gave my heart to know wisdom, and to know madness and folly: I perceived that this also is vexation of spirit.

For in much wisdom is much grief: and he that increaseth knowledge increaseth sorrow.

Tales that are Told

Worst Story I Have Heard Today

By WILL ROGERS

THE folks that was abroad this summer has about all come back now, and they tell some wonderful tales about Europe and Asia and Africa. You just can't believe all of them. They tell you so many things that don't gibe with what the others tell you. Some say the French hate us and others say they love us. Some say they hate the French and others say they love the French. I reckon we have to draw our own conclusions. We like the French if they are pretty and the French like us if we're rich. Ain't that it?

Well, anyhow, one woman was at a bridge party, and not getting much of a chance to talk, because all the others were telling what they saw in Europe. One woman was telling a new one, though. "London is awful foggy," she says. "Why, when we were there it was so foggy that you couldn't hardly see your hand in front of you."

"Well," says the woman that hadn't got a chance yet, "we were in a much foggier city than London, though. Several, in fact. Yes, we were in at least three towns that was much foggier than London."

The woman that had been talking was pretty sore about that. "What towns was those?" she says.

"Why, I don't know. We never could find out. It was much too foggy."

SMITH doesn't cut a distinguished figure in evening dress. In a restaurant, as he stood near the door waiting for his wife, a tall, pompous man came up and asked, "I say, my man, are you the head waiter?"

As quick as a flash Smith answered, "No; but I heard him tell a young man this afternoon that he wasn't taking on any more help."

New York Day by Day

by O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Oct. 19.—Thoughts while strolling: Who remembers when a divorcee was snubbed? Those ferocious-looking English bulldogs so gentle babies maul them. Efram Zimbalist, a Rostow-on-Don (Russia) boy who made good in the city. The Treasure Hunters' Club. Ganna Walska.

Traffic tower clocks always wrong. Gene Crawley. What's become of those pocket knives with a dingus to clean out a horse's hoof? Increase in cider shops. The aristocratic section springing up around Carl Schurz park. And Vincent Astor's handsome new apartment house nearby.

Marked down transformations. Children driving goat teams. Babies asleep on sand piles. Those strange creatures acting as hospital orderlies. Pathetic street preachers who scarcely ever attract an audience. But never give up. A loose steer throws a block in a panic.

Illuminated Al Smith signs on automobiles. Raymond Hitchcock's gray derby. The parade of hearses over the Ninth Street Bridge. Archie Andrews' yacht—once owned by Henry Ford. Prisoners playing football on Welfare Island. A bird store selling "monkey-faced owls."

The famous East Side gangster who wears hornrimmed glasses and a Basque cap. In a fair fight I could lick him myself. But they don't fight that way. Abandoned breweries with broken windows and an air of desolation. Families that gather on fire escapes and eat raw cabbages.

Young loafers in caps who bully small tradesmen. And loiter around big gas tanks. The sidewalk card writers on East Forty-second street who pen your name with a flourish of curlicues—2 cents a dozen. Combination pool halls and barber shops.

The golden gray twilight. A movie features a pie-eating contest. Wonder if the professional pie-eater enjoys his art. Bold window sign in cafe: "Real Beer." The celebrated Chinese gambler whose girl friend is a striking blonde. And who is reputed to spend $500 a day on Broadway. William Tilden leaving the Algonquin.

There are evidences Riverside Drive is to be swank again. It has always been an aristocratic thoroughfare and one of the most beautiful in the city, but for a time was deserted for new and hoity-toity centers such as Park avenue and the Sutton and Beekman Places. It is reported several apartment buildings and old homes slightly north of Seventy-second street are to be torn down to make way for private mansions with expansive lawns, fountains and a Pomander walk effect. The Drive offers a magnificent vista of the sparkling Hudson and purpling Palisades and the parkway on its outer fringe is an added advantage no other street offers.

Many New York streets have a way of sprawling capriciously into a conglomeration of lights and shadows. Park avenue, for instance, is at one end ramparted with de luxe apartment houses for the rich and trails off into a seething Ghetto. Fifth avenue ripples along with quiet old homes, fine stores and specialty shops, gaudy hotels, the fading millionaire's row and it, too, ends abruptly in a push cart market. On Madison avenue one reaches a different social level with every few blocks. Poverty and wealth are blatantly exposed.

To the average eye the most aristocratic strip of street in New York at present is Park avenue between Forty-seventh and Fifty-seventh streets.

Experts say there are more millionaires between Fifty-ninth street and One Hundredth on Fifth avenue than any other street in town.

That section between Forty-second street and Fiftieth on Broadway seems to me as fascinating as any. At least it has more of that indefinable quality we ink-stained wretches know as "human interest." It has been called the crossroads of America and certainly offers the greatest assortment of distinct types found anywhere.

* * *

Only this morning at Broadway and Forty-third street a gentleman whose mustache ends fell several inches below his chin and whose hat band was a rattlesnake skin stopped selling a magic something or other from a valise to call out: "I know you. I read your stuff every day."

Violence

By DR. FRANK CRANE.

Some people still put their reliance in force.

But it is eternally true that they that take the sword shall perish by the sword.

The Czar's rule was one of force and it disappeared in a cloud of blood. The Soviet rule also originated in force, is carried on by force, and will probably come to the same bloody conclusion.

The autocracy of Napoleon was a fitting end to the violence of the French Revolution.

Force is a deceptive shortcut to efficiency.

There is only one thing that can maintain the perpetuity of a government and that is respect for law.

People must learn to be good losers. They must quit seeking to right their wrongs by violence.

There are some who still believe that the best government is autocracy limited by assassination.

But the whole world is struggling upward toward the realm of law. Not only wars cease as a means of settling international disputes, but violence must cease as a means of righting real or imagined political injuries.

There is no remedy for acts of violence, in the long run, except the widespread and gradual respect for law.

There is no complete personal liberty nor complete national stability except under law.

Government by public opinion, which is another name for democracy, cannot be established unless there is a universal respect for life.

Ideas cannot be assassinated. Killing a person is the argument of a brute. Men should recognize that their only legitimate competition is by ideas.

Those who hope for a revolution, or a new order of things, should be satisfied with argument. The resort to bullets always does their cause more harm than good.

We can only hope and pray that our neighboring republic will cease to depend upon violence and come under the general rule of law.

It may be hard for people of hot blood to submit peaceably to conditions which they deem to be tyrannical and wrong. They have a perfect right to work against these conditions and may be assured that after a while if their cause is just it will prevail.

Universal education, respect for life and universal obedience to law is the only remedy, in the long run, for violence.

OH, THESE WOMEN

By LEOLA ALLARD.

"I WONDER why I'm not popular?" asked a girl with good looks, money, education and intelligence.

The two sweet things with whom she was lunching said: "My dear—you are. We all adore you!"

But when she left to keep an engagement, the girls talked it over. "I'll tell you why she isn't popular," said one of them, "no matter where she is, or who she is with, or what the topic of conversation, she always wants to give the impression that she knows more than anybody, about everything. She wants everybody else to feel hopelessly ignorant.

"I knew a man like that once," said the other girl, "and no one ever wanted him at a party. He was the lonliest soul I knew."

Mrs. Foster Welch, of Southampton, returning to England says that in America the men think too much of the women and the women too little of the men. "The American women take all the courtesy and generosity of the men as if it was their right," says she.

They are a convincing lot. If they didn't make the men think it was their right, they wouldn't get it.

And if you don't think the American women are the best looking, best dressed, best cared for women in the world, read this statement issued in Chicago by the beauty specialists in convention there:

"American women spend $3,472 a second to be beautiful.

"In one year 17,856,000 boxes of rouge were used.

"In one year the women bought 58,047,000 jars of cold cream.

"The talcum used weighed about 60,000 tons."

A California woman got a divorce because her husband read nothing but detective stories. She was a high brow and admitted it right out in court. He said he was too ignorant to appreciate her kind of literature.

If she is hunting a man who doesn't like detective stories better than high brow literature, she better borrow Diogenes' lantern.

An Omaha deb was within three days of the marital noose when she fled and left the man and the recipients of the wedding invitations without an explanation. That was several years ago. The other day she met a man she used to know in college, who, it is quite evident, knew her. They met Tuesday and Thursday they eloped and were married.

It's a mistake to give a woman too much time to think. And its a mistake to ask her. Tell her.

Isn't It So?
